GETTING OFF

TELL IT TO THE MARINES

There was a flap around Christmas time about a gay bar in North Hollywood collecting Toys For Tots to feed to the U.S. Marine's annual P.R. campaign. It seems that the chickenshit Marine Corps was afraid to pull a couple of their boys off Hollywood Boulevard long enough to go out to the bar and pick up whatever the faggots had collected. CBS-TV in L.A. picked up the story and named the U.S. Marine Corps "Turkey of the Year."

This is the same Marine Corps that open-handedly accepted toys from the Hell's Angels and made a big publicity flap when it did so. And the same Marine Corps that Harry Truman said had a publicity department bigger than some nation's armies.

But our beef is not with the assholes in the Marine hierarchy. Again we ask, why do gay men suck up to straight charities like these? These organizations can draw from the entire population and do, in the millions of dollars. But gay charities, or pro-gay groups like the ACLU, go begging and have no one but gays to draw from. I remember being at an annual function in Miami given by a leather bar there where there was an ACLU booth with a notice that they did not have enough money to even send a representative to interview a man held in a Florida prison simply because he was gay. Yet another bar was proud it had raised over $10,000 each year for some non-gay charity.

Any gays "Uncle Tomming" it with any straight charities, when gay people and gay causes are in such need, deserve what they get, no matter how well-intentioned their efforts.

And boy, is that particularly true with the big upcoming annual Gay Rodeo in Reno, Nevada.

MALECALL/ Dear Sir:

HOT STUFF!

Hello men!

Your latest issue (Drummer 70) has THE BEST photos yet, on the cover and inside, by Jim Wigler of that hot muscleman. I really like that photo of him in leather harness and jock advertising the Compound Tapes—let's have more of this type of guy! He certainly started things swelling between my thighs.

Also, that was a sensational story and drawing by the Hun ("Interrogation") in issue 68. Let's have more!!

Hope you don't mind this quick scribble—in a rush, but wanted to make sure I thanked you. Keep it up—and I'll keep mine up! Hot stuff!

THE DEBUT OF BRUTUS

Who in the hell is your coverman on the "1984" issue (Drummer 70)? Where has he been all our lives? I would swear I had seen that face and torso also done up as Mr. Law and Order in a Colt film some time back. Can't remember the name of it. He is phenomenal. Are we going to see any more of him?

You have a similar type in the back of the same issue advertising the Compound Tapes. Are they one and the same? What is his name? Where is he? Give us more. He can be my D.I. or arrest me any time he wants. Is he really the guy on the recording?

ALG
Boston, MA

(Editor's note: Our coverman last issue was Brutus, who indeed is the man in the ad for the new Compound Tape series. He has just finished his first tape called "The Interrogation," and comes on strong as his photographs would indicate. Brutus did indeed do a film for Colt Studios entitled "Hot Cop." His photographs are available from Manhunt Studios, and the tape is from The Compound. You will undoubtedly be seeing a lot more of Brutus.)

HAIRY BONDAGE

I just got your latest issue (Drummer 69) and wanted to send you a note of thanks. The article on Inferno XII was good, and the pics were great. The hairy, humpy photos on pages 14 and 20 were worth the price of the whole magazine! I'm wearing out page 20, as every time I pick up the mag I check to see if that hairy hunk is still tied up!

How about doing an article on hairy men sometime? Keep up the good work.

R.H.

BALD INSPIRATION

I had never seen your magazine until a few months ago, when I moved to New York from the Midwest looking for excitement and work. As a young, naive 25-year-old, I accepted part-time work tending bar and shortly after met this handsome guy who invited me home with him. It was at his apartment that I discovered your incredible magazine.

I was swiftly excited, especially by letters and articles on body shaving, and subsequently found by body covered with warm shaving cream. Despite my initial fears and objections, my erect shaft revealed my excitement, and before I could change my mind I felt the razor begin to remove the coarse dark hair from my legs.

In what must have been record time, this guy expertly removed the thick hair from my chest, armpits and arms, saving my hairy bush and balls for the grand finale. I was quickly turned over so he could complete the shave of my legs, back and ass, and only then was I to see my freshly shaven body for the first time.

I was silently staring at myself in the mirror when he came in carrying electric barber's clippers. Having already decided that I liked my new clean look, I agreed to having my head shaved bald. After the clippers had done the initial job, my head was lathered and the razor removed all that was left, revealing a smooth shiny head, which left only my heavy mustache as a reminder of my hairy past. With my head and body shaved, I returned to work expecting to be fired and was delighted to discover what a turn-on I became! Thank you, Drummer, for your great ideas; I'm sure I will discover more in the months ahead.

SUCCESSFUL INTERROGATION

Even though Drummer is the standard for excellence for America's gay magazines, some of the material in the last couple of issues have given new meaning to the word "excellent."

The Hun's story "Interrogation" (Drummer 68) has to be one of the hottest, most exciting stories Drummer has run in quite some time. That story is classic J/O material if ever there was any! The Hun illustration accompanying the story is priceless and an absolute classic. I'm glad to see that The Hun is back; please, let's have more of his work in Drummer soon.

I also very much enjoyed "The Perfect Man" by Roy F. Wood in the same issue (that sheriff reminded me of a local deputy sheriff I know) and the photo spread by Jim Moss, "Fucking Off at the New Drummer Offices," but for me, the workout Sergeant Murphy gave Sig in "Interrogation" was the highlight of Drummer 68.

"Crown of Thorns" by Aaron Travis in Drummer 69 continued this trend of excellence. Travis has always been one of my favorite writers, and this one (set in Turkey, no less) has to be one of his very best efforts. I really got into the SM relationship between Eric and Rezi. Again, please let's have more of this author's brand of hot fiction.

I realize that it's a lot of hard work to put out Drummer every month; this is just to let you know that your efforts are not in vain and are appreciated. Keep it up!

DRUMMER INVESTIGATES AND INSTIGATES THE J/O PHENOMENON
IN ANOTHER "JOYS OF SELF-ABUSE." KEEP GOING →

The Joys of

Self-Abuse

Imagine, if you will, The Rockettes at Radio City Music Hall in New York City, kicking high across the giant stage in front of all that kitsch. Now change the location to San Francisco (or keep it in New York if you insist), and while you're imagining, make the Rockettes all men and, instead of kicking high, they would have their cocks out and be essentially nude and beating off. Would you go to see the show, dear reader? No matter how bad the G-rated movie playing with it?

This little attempt at Let's Pretend isn't as unlikely as it sounds, although we doubt it's taking place at Radio City Music Hall. Try Animals on Sixth Street in San Francisco instead, at an invitational gathering this month organized for DRUMMER for the express purpose of finding out what the great J/O phenomenon is all about. And boy, did we find out.

We cast our invitations to two of the better-known J/O clubs around. First, the San Francisco Jacks, with its hundred-plus members who meet weekly at the Caldron, and the more exclusive 5-H Club (Hung, Handsome, Hunky, Hot & Horny) who meet at the Academy.

Russ Culver and Bobby Belcher at

Animals graciously offered their facilities, which cover three stories embellished with excellent mural work, mirrors and various erotic equipment for just such carryings-on. DRUMMER brought three photographers, enough lights to give everyone a sunstroke, Lube (it turned out a true J/O aficionado prefers Albolene Creme), beer and a couple of choreographers, namely David Marcum and Robert Payne. The result was an evening to remember.

I suppose none of us are truly amateurs at meat-beating, but some of these men have it down to a science. God knows they are equipped for the sport. Some of those big schlongs hung down halfway to their knees, and a few had balls in harness which brought said testicles down just as long as their dicks. They did a chorus line for us. They sat in a perfect circle on the floor for a true circle jerk. They surrounded one of their members and beat off over him as in some ancient tribal ritual. Some of the bigger boys got their equipment together and knocked it around, somewhat akin to playing baseball using only bats. They pounded their own and they pounded each other's.

It has always been a theory of mine that men should grope each other instead of shaking hands. It is so much more personal. History tells us that shaking hands comes from a time when men wished to show each other that they were unarmed and friendly. How much friendlier it is to grab a man's crotch and hold his balls. He may not be unarmed there, but it proves considerable trust. And the response can be far more heartwarming than a firm handshake. The resulting firmness between his legs is the most sincere expression of all.

These J/O men were sharing with one another the intimate things they do in private with only themselves. And the tone of the evening reflected just that. They were using their equipment for the purpose for which it was intended, other than procreation or pissing.

Of course, jacking off, which has always been popular, has become a leading group effort with the aspect of the terrible AIDS plague. These men see it as a much safer release than other forms of sex, and probably rightly so. There was no evidence of drugs that night, very little popper use (hard on your hard-on), and even smoking was kept to a minimum since everybody's hands seemed to be full most of the time.

And the climaxes. "Tell 'em about the climaxes, Robert." It started with the low moaning of sheer enjoyment, then a louder groaning, finally erupting in shouts of joy. An early, rather spectacular coming set it all off, and everyone seemed to want to be in on the one great multiple climax so each could have and give his share. It was beautiful and awe-inspiring.

Then relaxing was followed by a lot of hugging and camaraderie and a cold beer. Many went to more private places for encores, but there are always party-goers who never realize when the party is truly over.

We made personal contact with a select few concerning the casting of some of that impressive meat in plaster. But that will be another party for another issue.

Talk about your toys in the attic—we'll bet you never thought about storing your slave under the rafter, right? But, as you can see, attics were really designed with eye-bolts and wrist restraints in mind.

Add the Love Chair (probably the most useful seating design ever executed) and you've got instant rack. Seal the windows and even the neighborhood owl won't know what delightful atrocities occur under your crossbeams.

K NIGHTS INITIATION TEMPLAR

BY JAKE GRAY

If the name Knights Templar sounds vaguely familiar, it's probably because you heard the term in high school history class—an order of knights founded in the twelfth century with the purpose of guarding pilgrims on the Second Crusade, whose power, prestige and numbers spread throughout Europe until the group was violently suppressed in the 1300s. What they probably didn't tell you in history class were the kind of charges that were levelled at the Knights Templar when the Pope and the King of France decided they'd gotten too big—insinuations of strange practices behind locked doors, whispers of exotic homosexual initiation rites and phallus worship.

Historians differ over whether such accusations had a basis in fact, or were just a cynical political ploy to exploit homophobic hysteria; but the image of the Knights Templar as a closed society of men united by rituals of the flesh has continued over the centuries until it has acquired a legendary status. It makes sense, then, that a newly-formed group of leathermen, headquartered in San Francisco, have chosen to identify themselves as the Knights Templar. Based on our own observations at one of the group's recent monthly events, the new Knights Templar may become legendary themselves one day.

Best described as a private men's SM club, the Knights Templar congregate to share the use of a well-equipped dungeon stocked with an amazing collection of unusual and sometimes unique SM devices. These events may be freewheeling, but certainly don't constitute a free-for-all; because along with the pleasure and pain, the Knights Templar put a strong emphasis on the practice of safe and sane SM techniques, demonstrating proper methods of restraint, safe application of various devices, etc.—and a primary goal is a further extension into continuing education on safe and sane SM.

Like their notorious forebears, the modern Knights Templar are also likely to become known for their initiations. The pictures reproduced on these pages were taken at the order's first initiation ceremony. The prospective Knights were first stripped naked for inspection, then transported, hooded and bound, to a private dungeon located in San Francisco's South of Market district. There, among other things, they were subjected to heavy-duty bondage and restraint, disciplined with paddles and whips, and introduced to the art of body piercing and application of numerous esoteric electrical devices.

The Knights Templar welcomes new applicants, who must first pass through the club's screening procedure (which includes sponsorship by a member in good standing) before eventual acceptance and initiation into the order. If, after surveying the scenes depicted here, you think you have what it takes, and if your own approach to SM is safe and sane, you can initiate contact with the Knights Templar by addressing a letter of inquiry to: Knights Templar, 39 Moss Street, San Francisco, CA 94103. □

BEAUTY'S PUNISHMENT

BONUS BOOK SECTION

AN EXCERPT FROM THE SEQUEL TO THE CLAIMING OF SLEEPING BEAUTY

by A.N. ROQUELAURE

In The Claiming of Sleeping Beauty, published last year, A.N. Roquelaure reworked an innocent fable into an erotic novel of spectacular depravity. In a strange medieval realm, unplaceable in real history or geography, the sons and daughters of royalty are sent to a distant kingdom to serve a sentence of absolute slavery. Their Masters, unrestrained by law or compassion, have created a society devoted to the gratification of their most extreme fantasies.

This story continues in Beauty's Punishment. In the excerpts that follow, Beauty herself is absent; instead, we follow the fortunes of Prince Tristan, young, handsome, blond, once the personal slave of the Queen but now expelled from the castle to serve a term of punishment in the village. There he is sold on the auction block to Nicolas, the Queen's Chronicler, a powerful young man with shocking white hair and icy blue eyes "full of darkness at the very centers."

First broken in as a pony—harnessed to the carriage of his new Master and Mistress and fitted with a horse-tailed phallus inside him—Tristan arrives at the country estate of Master Nicolas...

The Farm and Stable

At once several naked male slaves advanced towards us. I could hear the coach creaking as the Master and Mistress were helped down. And these slaves, all very darkly browned by the sun, their shaggy hair sunbleached and gleaming, commenced to unharness us, slipping the immense phallus out of my buttocks and leaving it tethered to the equipage. I let go of the cruel bit with a gasp. I felt emptied like a sack, light and without will.

Two roughly dressed youths appeared, both with long flat wooden sticks in their hands, and I followed the other ponies along a narrow path to a low building that was obviously a stable.

At once we were bent over a huge wooden beam at the waist, our cocks pressed down by the wood, and made to grasp with our teeth leather rings that hung from another such rough bar before us. I had to strain to catch the thing in my teeth, the beam against my belly biting into the flesh, and once I did, my feet almost left the ground. My arms were still laced behind my back so I couldn't have caught myself. But I didn't fall. I held fast to the soft leather of the ring like the others. And when I felt the splash of warm water all over my aching backside and legs I was grateful for it.

Nothing had ever felt so delicious, I thought. That is, until I was dried all over and the oil was rubbed into my muscles. This was ecstasy, even as I stretched my neck so torturously. It did not matter much that the shaggy haired sunbrowned slaves were so rough and quick, their fingers pressing forcefully at the welts and lacerations. I heard grunts and groans all around, as much from pleasure as from the biting of the ring. Our shoes were removed, and my burning feet were oiled and they tingled exquisitely.

Then we were pulled up, and spanked hard with the flat wooden slats to yet another beam over which we must lean in the same manner to lap our food from an open trough, just as if we were in fact ponies.

Greedy the slaves ate. I struggled to overcome the pure mortification of the image. But my face was pressed into the stew. The taste was rich and good. The tears standing in my eyes again, I lapped as sloppily as the others, one of the groom slaves lifting my hair and stroking it almost lovingly. I realized he was stroking me just as one might a beautiful horse. In fact, he was patting my rump. The mortification shot through me again, my cock pushing against the beam that held it bent down towards the earth and my balls feeling mercilessly heavy.

When I could eat no more, a bowl of milk was held for me to lap, and pushed into my face again and again as I hurriedly tried to empty it. By the time I had lapped this up, and had some cool fresh spring water, all the painful fatigue in my legs had melted. What was left was the throb of the welts and that feeling that my buttocks were frightfully enormous and scarlet with lash marks and that my anus gaped for the phallus that had widened it.

But all the ponies were the same. How could they not be? And I was merely one of six, arms tightly laced as the others.

My head was lifted, and another soft leather ring with a long leather lead attached was forced into my mouth. I bit down and was pulled up and back away from the trough by it. All the ponies were being pulled up in the same manner, and now they ran ahead struggling after a dark skinned slave who tugged us by the leads towards the orchard.

We trotted fast, pulled with hard humiliating tugs, groaning and grunting as our feet crushed the grass beneath us. Now our arms were being unbound.

I was taken by the hair, the ring removed from my mouth, and pushed down on my hands and knees. The branches of the trees spread out above making a green shade from the sun, and I saw the beautiful burgandy velvet of the Mistress' dress beside me.

She took me by the hair, just as the groom slave had done, and lifted my head so that for one second I looked directly at her. Her small face was very white and her eyes were a deep grey with the same dark center I saw in the Master's eyes, but at once I looked down, my heart thudding in fear of her correction.

"Do you have a soft mouth, Prince?" she asked. I knew I was not to speak, and confused by her question I shook my head gently. All around me the other ponies were busy at some task but I could not clearly see what they were doing. The Mistress pushed my face into the grass. I saw before me a ripe green apple. "A soft mouth will take that piece of fruit firmly in its teeth and deposit it there in the basket as the other slaves are doing and never leave the slightest teeth mark on it," she said.

As she let go my hair, I picked up the apple and, frantically searching for the basket, trotted forward and put the apple in it. The other slaves worked fast and I rushed to imitate their speed, seeing not only the Mistress' skirts and boots, but the Master as well standing not far from her. I went desperately at my task, finding another apple, and another and another, and becoming anxious and frenzied when I could find no more.

Then softly I heard the slave next to me. "It's always so," he said sleepily. He stretched his neck, twisting his head so that his loose black hair fell down more freely... Like all the rest he had an obvious beauty. "One is made to satisfy the others," he said. "And when there is a new slave he is always the one. Other times it's chosen in various ways, but the one chosen must suffer."

But quite suddenly another phallus was rammed dry into my anus and I was forced forward with such speed that surely a long rod was driving it. I was rushing after the others deeper into the orchard, the grass prickling my penis and balls, and once again I had an apple in my teeth, and the phallus stabbed me towards the waiting basket. I glimpsed a young man's worn boots behind me. And that gave some relief, that it was not the Master or Mistress.

I tried to find the next apple on my own, hoping the tool would be withdrawn, but I was tumbled forward by it, and could not reach the basket quickly enough. It drove me this way and that as I piled up the apples, until the basket was quite full and all the slaves in a little flock were being sent scampering to another stand of trees, and I was the only one driven by a phallus. My face burned at the thought that I alone required it, but no matter how I hurried it pushed me ruthlessly forward. The grass tortured my penis. It tortured the tender insides of my thighs, and even my throat as I scooped up the apples. But nothing could stop me from trying to keep pace.

And when I saw the dim figures of the Master and Mistress quite far away, moving towards the manor house, I felt a flush of gratitude that they wouldn't see my difficulties. And I continued to work frantically.

Finally all the baskets were filled. We searched in vain for more of the apples. And I was pushed after the little group as we rose to our feet and started to trot again towards the stables, our arms folded behind our backs as if they'd been laced there. I thought the phallus would let me alone then, but it pierced me and drove me still, and I struggled to catch up with the others.

The sight of the stables filled me with dread, though I didn't know why.

We were whipped into a long haystrewn room, the hay feeling good under my feet, and then the other slaves were gathered up one by one and made to squat beneath a long thick beam some four feet above the ground and at least that many feet from the wall behind it. Each slave had his arms lashed around the beam, elbows pointing sharply forward. His legs were positioned wide and back at a low squat so that his cock and balls jutted painfully. Each head was bowed beneath the beam, hair fallen in red-denied faces. I waited, trembling, for the same, realizing that this had been done very fast, all five slaves tethered at once, and I had been spared. The fear in me blazed a little hotter.

But I was being forced to my hands and knees again and driven towards the first of the slaves, the one who had led the team, a powerfully built, blond haired slave who twisted and thrust out his hips as I approached, struggling it seemed for some comfort in the miserable squatting position.

At once I realized what I was to do, and absolute perplexity stopped me. I was so starved for the thick glistening cock before my face. But how the sucking of it would torture my own organ! I could only hope for mercy after. But as I opened my mouth, the groom pulled up on the phallus.

"Balls first," he said, "a good tongue bathing!"

The bound Prince groaned and rolled his hips towards me. I hastened to obey, my buttocks held up by the phallus, my own cock ready to burst. My tongue lapped at the soft, salty skin, lifting the balls and letting them slide out of my mouth, then lapping fast, trying to cover them all as the taste of the warm flesh and salt intoxicated me. The Prince wriggled and danced as I licked, his extraordinarily muscled legs flexing up and down as much as the space would allow. I mouthed all of the scrotum, sucking on it, nipping at it. And unable to wait any longer for the cock, I drew back and closed my lips on it, plunging to the nest of pubic hair in a fury of sucking. Back and forth I went until I realized the Prince was driving at his own rhythm. All I need do was hold my head still, the phallus burning into my anus as the cock slipped in and out of my lips, grazing my teeth, and I grew ever more delirious with the thickness of it, the smooth tip pumping against the roof of my mouth, my own hips pumping shamelessly now, grinding up and down in the same rhythm. But when it jumped and emptied into my throat there was no relief for my cock dancing in the empty air. I could only swallow the sour, salty fluid hungrily.

At once I was pulled back. A dish of wine was given me to lap. Then I was marched to the next waiting Prince who was already struggling in the inevitable rhythm.

My jaws ached when I had finished the row.

My throat ached. And my own cock could not have been any stiffer, any more eager. I was now at the mercy of the groom, and desperate for even a sign that I should know some relief from the torture.

I was now bound to the beam, arms thrust over it, legs in the same awkward degrading squat. But there was no slave there to satisfy me. As the groom left us alone in the empty stable, I broke into soft muffled groans, my hips straining forward helplessly.

The stable was quiet now.

The others must have slumbered. The late afternoon sun leaked like a vapor through the open door. I dreamed of relief in all its glorious forms, of Lord Stefan lying under me in that land long ago where we had been friends and lovers before either of us had ever come to this strange kingdom, of the Master's or the Mistress' hand touching me.

But this only made my torment worse. My balls felt pendulous and enormous.

Then softly I heard the slave next to me. "It's always so," he said sleepily. He stretched his neck, twisting his head so that his loose black hair fell down more freely. I could only see a little of his face. Like all the rest he had an obvious beauty. "One is made to satisfy the others," he said. "And when there is a new slave he is always the one. Other times it's chosen in various ways, but the one chosen must suffer."

"Yes, I see," I said miserably. It seemed he was slumbering again.

"What is our Mistress' name?" I pressed, thinking he might know, as surely this was not his first day.

"Mistress Julia is her name, but she's not my Mistress," he whispered softly. "Rest now. You need your rest, uncomfortable as it is, believe me."

"My name is Tristan," I said. "How long have you been here?"

"Two years," he said. "My name is Jerard. I tried to run away from the castle, and almost reached the border of the next kingdom. I would have been safe there. But when I was only an hour or less away, a band of peasants hunted me down and caught me. They never help an escaping slave. And I had stolen clothes from their cottage. They stripped me fast enough and bound me hand and foot and brought me back and I was sentenced to three years in the village. The Queen never looked at me again."

I winced. Three years! And he had served two already!

"But would you really have been safe if you..."

"Yes, but the great difficulty is reaching the border."

"And you weren't afraid that your parents... Didn't they send you to the Queen and tell you to obey?"

"I was too afraid of the Queen," he said. "And I wouldn't have gone home anyway."

"Have you tried since?"

"No." He laughed softly under his breath. "I'm one of the best ponies in the village. I was sold right away to the public stables. I'm rented out every day by the rich Masters and Mistresses, though Master Nicolas and Mistress Julia rent me most often. I still hope for clemency from Her Majesty, that I'll be allowed back to the castle early, but if not, I won't weep. If I wasn't run hard every day I'd probably become anxious. Now and then I feel fretful and I kick or struggle, but a good thrashing quiets me down beautifully. My Master knows just when I need it; even if I've been good, he knows. I like pulling a handsome coach like your Master's coach. I like the shiny new harnesses and reins, and he swings a hard strap, that one, the Queen's Chronicle. You know he means it. Every now and then he'll stop and rub my hair, or give me a pinch, and I almost come on the spot. He declares his authority over my cock, too, lashing it and then laughing at it. I adore him. Once he had me pull a little basket cart on two wheels all by myself while he walked beside it. I hate the small carts, but with your Master, I tell you I almost lost my mind from the pride. It was so lovely..."

(I am over 21 years of age)

Against the ramparts far to the right, giant wheels turned slowly, spread-eagled slaves going round and round, their enflamed thighs and buttocks targets for apple cores, peach stones and even raw eggs from the crowd, while several other slaves hobbled along at a squat behind their Masters, necks tethered by two short leather chains to their wide-spread knees...

"Why was it lovely?" I asked, mutely fascinated. I was trying to picture him, his long black hair, the hair of the horse's tail sprouting from the phallus in his anus, and the slender elegant figure of my Master walking beside him. All that lovely white hair in the sun, my Master's lean thoughtful face, those deep blue eyes.

"I don't know," he said. "I'm not much with words. I'm always proud when I am trotting. But I was all alone with him. We came out of the village for a twilight walk in the country. All the women were out at their gates to bid him good evening. And gentlemen passed coming home from a day of inspection at their farms to their lodgings in the village.

"Every now and then your Master would lift my hair off the back of my neck and smooth it out. He'd tethered the rein good and high so my head was way back, and he gave me many a crack on the calves I didn't need just because he liked it. It was the most exhilarating feeling, trotting on the road, and hearing the crunch of his boots beside me. I didn't care if I ever saw the castle again. Or ever left the kingdom. He always asks for me, your Master. The other ponies are terrified of him. They come back to the stables with their buttocks raw and they say he whips them twice as much as anyone else, but I revere him. He does what he does well. And so do I. And so will you now that he's your Master."

I couldn't answer.

He didn't say any more after that. He soon fell asleep, and I squatted very still, my thighs aching, my cock miserable as before thinking of his little descriptions. It sent chills through me to listen to what he said, and yet I understood what he was saying.

It unnerved me, but it was undeniable. I understood it.

When they released us and drove us out to the coach, it was almost dark, and I felt myself fascinated by the harness and the nipple clamps and the reins and the lacings and the phallus as they were all refitted. Of course they hurt and frightened me. But I was thinking of Jerard's words. I could see him harnessed in front of me, I stared at the way he tossed his head, stamped his feet in the boots as if to improve the fit. And I stared forward at nothing with wide, baffled eyes as the phallus was worked well into me and the straps pulled tight, lifting me off the ground, and we were jerked into a fast trot down the road away from the manor house.

Tears were already spilling down my face as we turned on the road, the dark battlements of the village looming before us. Lights burned in the north and south towers. It must have been that same time of evening that Jerard had described, as there were few carriages on the road, and the women leaned on their gates, waving as we passed, and now and then I saw a lone man walking. I was marching as briskly as I could, my chin painfully high, the heavy thick phallus seeming to pulse with heat inside me.

I was cracked over and over again with the strap, but not once was I reprimanded. And just before we reached the Master's house, I remembered with a start what Jerard had said about nearly reaching the neighboring kingdom! Perhaps he was wrong that he would have been received. And what about his father? Mine had said obey, the Queen is all powerful and you will be well rewarded for your service, well enhanced in wisdom. I tried to put it out of my mind. I'd never really thought of escape. It was too baffling a thought, too much against the grain of what was already so hard to accommodate.

It was dark when we pulled up to the Master's door. My boots and harnesses were taken off, everything but the phallus, and all the other ponies were whipped away to the public stables, pulling the empty coach after them.

I stood still, thinking of Jerard's other words and wondering at the strange hot shiver that went through me when the Mistress lifted my face and brushed my hair back from it.

"There, there," she said again in that tender voice. She blotted my forehead and wet my cheeks with a smooth handkerchief of white linen. I looked right into her eyes, and she kissed my lips, my cock almost dancing, as the kiss took the breath out of me.

She slipped the phallus out so quickly I was pulled off balance, glancing back at her in alarm. And then she disappeared into the rich little house, and I stood shaken, gazing up at the high peaked roof, and the fine sprinkling of stars above it, realizing that I was alone with the Master, his thick strap in his hand as always.

He turned me around and had me march along the broad paved road back in the direction of the marketplace.

Grand Entertainment

Without the dread pony harnesses, I felt rudely bare and vulnerable as I marched fast towards the end of the road, expecting any second the tug of the reins as if I still wore them. Many coaches roared by us now, decorated with lanterns, the slaves clapping fast, heads high just as mine had been. Did I like it better that way? Or this way? I didn't know! I only knew fear and desire, and an absolute awareness that my handsome Master Nicolas, my Master who was stricter than so many others was walking behind me.

A great deal of light poured into the road ahead. We were coming to the end of the village. But as I marched around the last of the high buildings to my left, I saw not the marketplace, but some other open place, immensely crowded and full of torch light and lantern light. I could smell the wine in the air, and hear the loud, drunken, raucous laughter. Couples danced arm in arm, and wine sellers with full wineskins over their shoulder pushed through the crowd offering cups to all comers.

My Master stopped suddenly and gave a coin to one of these and held the cup before me to lap the wine from it. I flushed to the roots of my hair at the kindness of it, drinking the wine greedily but as neatly as I could. My throat had been burning.

When I looked up, I saw clearly that this was some sort of fairgrounds of punishments. Surely it was the place of what the Auctioneer had called Public Punishment.

Slaves were pilloried in a long row to one side, others were tethered in dimly lit tents with the entrance open for villagers to go and come, paying a coin to an attendant. Other tethered slaves ran in a circle around a high maypole, punished by four paddlers. Here and there a pair of slaves scampered in the dust to retrieve some object tossed before them, while young men and women urged them on, obviously having placed some bet on the hoped-for winner. Against the ramparts far to the right, giant wheels turned slowly, spread-eagled slaves going round and round, their enflamed thighs and buttocks targets for apple cores, peach stones and even raw eggs from the crowd, while several other slaves hobbled along at a squat behind their Masters, necks tethered by two short leather chains to their wide-spread knees, their arms stretched out to support long poles with baskets of apples for sale dangling from the ends of them. Two pink and plump breasted little Princesses, glistening with sweat, rode wooden horses with wild rocking gestures, their vaginas obviously impaled by wooden cocks. And as I watched astonished, my Master walking me slowly now, his own eyes sweeping the fair, one Princess reached her flushing, red-faced climax for the crowd and was obviously applauded the winner of the contest. The other was paddled, castigated, and scolded by those who had laid down their bets on her.

But the grand entertainment was the high turntable where a slave was being thrashed by a long rectangular leather paddle. My heart sank when I saw it. I remembered the Mistress' words, threatening me with the Public Turntable.

I was being forced steadily towards it. We were pushing right through the sea of howling, whooping spectators that radiated out some fifty feet from the high platform, and right towards the slaves who knelt with their hands up behind their necks, much berated by the onlookers, as they waited at the wooden steps to be taken up and paddled.

As I stared in disbelief, my master forced me directly into place at the end of this line. Coins were passed to an attendant. I was pushed to my knees, unable to conceal my fear, the tears stinging my eyes at once, my whole frame shuddering. What had I done? Dozens of round faces turned towards me. I could hear their taunts:

Finally

Mr. Benson, the book: Penthouse named it one of the "Top Ten" SM novels ever written.

Mr. Benson, the man: Jesse Monteagudo, in the Miami Weekly News, called him "one of the great figures of gay literature. . . awesome, forbidding, and almost godlike. He is the ideal Master. . . No wonder gay males went out looking for Mr. Benson in droves."

No wonder, indeed. There has never before been a love story like this one, ripped from the lives of real leathersmen and the young men who quest after them. There has never before been a character like Mr. Benson. Originally serialized in Drummer, this trade paperback edition has been completely revised by the author with a surprising new epilogue from Mr. Benson himself.

The crowd gave a genial roar as I was whirled around again and the second blow came and then the whirl and another and then another. I clenched my teeth on my cries, the warm pain radiating out from my buttocks through my cock... I tried to close my eyes, but they opened wide with each blow, and my mouth was wide, my cries erupting uncontrollably.

"Oh, is the castle slave too good for the Public Turntable? Look at that cock."

"Has that cock been a bad boy?"

"What's he being whipped for, Master Nicolas?"

"His good looks," said my Master with a soft touch of dark humor. I looked towards the steps and the high platform in horror. I could see almost nothing but the lower steps now, as I knelt, the crowd some twenty or thirty deep in all directions. Laughter exploded at my Master's answer, the light of torches glinting on moist cheeks and eyes. The slave in front of me struggled forward as another was rushed up the steps. From somewhere came the loud roll of a drum and renewed screams from the crowd. I twisted around to face my Master frantically. I went down kissing his boots. The crowd pointed and laughed.

"Poor desperate Prince," a man taunted. "Do you miss your nice perfume bath at the castle?"

"Did the Queen paddle you over her knee?"

"Look at that cock, that cock needs a good Master or Mistress."

I felt a firm hand grasp my hair and raise my head, and I saw through my tears that handsome face above me, smooth and a little hard. The blue eyes narrowed very slowly, their dark centers seeming to expand, as the right hand was raised, the first finger wagging back and forth stiffly, the lips silently forming the word "no." The breath went out of me. The eyes grew still and stone cold and the left hand let me go and I turned back in line of my own accord, clamping my hands to the back of my neck, again shuddering and swallowing as the crowd gave exaggerated ooooh's and awww's of mock sympathy.

"That's a good boy," shouted a man in my ear, "you don't want to disappoint this crowd, now, do you?" I felt his boot touch my buttocks. "I'm betting ten pence he puts on the best show tonight."

"And who's to judge that?" said another.

"Ten pence he really moves those buttocks!"

It seemed an eternity before I saw the next slave go up, and then the next and the next, and finally I was the last one struggling forward in the dust, the sweat pouring down me in rivulets, my knees burning, my head swimming. Even in this moment I believed somehow I had to be rescued. My Master had to be merciful, change his mind, realize I'd done nothing to deserve it. It had to happen because I could not endure it.

The crowd shifted and pressed in. Loud cries rose as the Princess being paddled above squealed and I heard the thunder of her feet on the turntable. I felt the sudden impulse to rise and run, But I did not move, and the noise in the square seemed pumped to greater and greater volume by a roll of drums again. The paddling was over and I was next and two attendants were rushing me up the steps while with my whole soul I rebelled, and I heard my Master's firm command, "No fetters."

No fetters. So there had been that choice. I almost broke into a wild struggle. O, please for the mercy of fetters. But to my horror I was of my own accord stretching out to place my chin on the high wooden post and spreading my knees, and folding my hands clasped on my my back with the rough hands of the attendants merely guiding me.

Then I was alone. No hands touched me. My knees rested in only the shallowest indentations in the wood. Nothing but the slender post of the chin rest came between me and thousands of pairs of eyes, my chest and belly tightening in rolling spasms.

The turntable was cranked around fast and I saw the huge figure of the shaggy haired Whipping Master, sleeves rolled above his elbows, the giant paddle in his mammoth right hand. With the left, he scooped up from a wooden bucket a thick dripping dollop of honey-colored cream. "Ah, let me guess!" he shouted. "It's a fresh little boy from the castle who's never been paddled here before! Soft and pink as a piglet for all his golden hair and sturdy legs. Now are you going to give these good people a fine show, young man?" He spun the turntable again half around and slapped the thick cream to my buttocks, working it in well as the crowd reminded him in loud shouts that he would need plenty. The drums gave their chilling deep-throated roll. I saw the whole square spread out before me, hundreds of eager gaping villagers, and the poor unfortunates circling the maypole, the pilloried slaves struggling as they were pinched and prodded, slaves hung upside down from an iron carousel being cranked slowly around just as I was being moved now in a relentless circle.

My buttocks warmed and then seemed to simmer and cook under the thick massaging of cream. I could almost feel it glistening. And I knelt freely, unfettered! My eyes were so suddenly dazzled by the torches that I blinked.

"You heard me, young man," came the Whipping Master's booming voice again, and I was back facing him and he was wiping his hand dry on his stained apron. He reached out now and cradled my chin, pinching my cheeks as he wagged my head back and forth. "Now you will give these people a good show!" he said loudly, "You hear me, young man? And do you know why you'll give them a good show? Because I'll thrash your pretty buttocks until you do it!" And the crowd squealed in derisive laughter. "You're going to move that handsome rump, young slave, if you've never moved it before. This is the Public Turntable!" And with a sharp slap of the foot pedal, he gave the turntable another whirl, using the long rectangular paddle to spank both my buttocks with a shattering crack, driving me frantically to struggle for balance.

The crowd gave a genial roar as I was whirled around again and the second blow came and then the whirl and another and then another. I clenched my teeth on my cries, the warm pain radiating out from my buttocks through my cock. I heard taunts of "Harder," "Really thrash the slave," and "Work that rump," "Pump that cock." And I realized I was obeying these commands, not deliberately but helplessly, wriggling as I was sent into frantic upheaval by each deafening smack, trying not to slip out of place on the turntable.

I tried to close my eyes, but they opened wide with each blow, and my mouth was wide, my cries erupting uncontrollably. The paddle spanked me to one side and the other, almost toppling me and then righting me, and yet I felt my starved cock jerking forward at each blow, throbbing with desire at each blow, and the pain flashed in my head like a fire exploding.

The myriad tints and shapes of the square were mired together. My body, caught in the whirl of spanking blows, seemed to fly loose from itself. I could no longer struggle for balance, yet the paddle would not let me slide or fall, there had never been any such danger. And I was caught in the speed of the turns, riding the heat and force of the paddle, crying aloud in short wrenching bursts, the crowd clapping and shouting and chanting.

All the images of the day fused in my brain, Jerald's strange speech, the Mistress thrusting the phallus between my spread buttocks, and yet I thought of nothing clearly except the slamming of the paddle and the laughing crowd that seemed to flow out from the turntable forever. "Snap those hips!" cried the Whipping Master, and without thought or will I obeyed, overcome by the force of the command, by the force of the will of the crowd, snapping wildly and hearing hoarse raucous cheers, the paddle slapping first the left and then the right side of my buttocks and then thundering on my calves and rising to my thighs and my buttocks again.

I was lost as I had never been lost. The shouts and jeers washed me as surely as the light washed me and the pain washed me. I was only burning welts and swelling flesh and the hard rod of a cock jerking vainly as the multitude screamed, the paddle smacking again and again, my own cries vying with it in volume. Nothing in the castle had so drenched my soul. Nothing had so seared me and emptied me.

I was plunged into the depth of the village, abandoned there. And it was luxurious suddenly, horribly luxurious, that so many should witness this delirium of abasement. If I must lose my pride, my will, my soul, let them revel in it. And it was natural too that hundreds milling in the square should not even note it.

Yes, I was this thing now, this nude and bulging mass of genitals and sore muscles, the pony who pulled the coach, the

ALTERNATE PUBLISHING 964 FOLSOM ST. SAN FRANCISCO CA 94107

I did not hope or fear what might happen here. My Master was removing his clothes, and as I watched amazed, he peeled off everything, neatly folding it on the chest at the foot of the bed. Then he turned to face me. His sex was alive and hard as mine... He turned down the green coverlet of the bed, and beckoned for me to come up into it.

sweating, crying object of public ridicule. And they could pleasure in it or ignore it as they wanted.

The Whipping Master stepped back. He whirled the turntable round and round. My buttocks boiled. My open mouth shuddered, cries choking loose as loudly as ever.

"Get those hands down between your legs and cover your balls!" roared the Whipping Master. Mindlessly, in a last gesture of debasement, I obeyed, hunching, my chin still well propped, to shield my balls as the crowd stamped and laughed all the harder. Suddenly I saw a shower of objects sailing through the air. I was being pelted with half-eaten apples, crusts of bread, the soft crush of raw eggs as the shells exploded against my buttocks and back and shoulders. I felt sharp stings on my cheeks, the soles of my naked feet, my eyes wide as the hail continued. Even my penis was struck, which brought sharp shrieks of laughter.

Now a rain of coins commenced to hit the boards. The Whipping Master shouted, "More, you know it was good. More! Buy out the slave's whipping and the Master will bring him back all the sooner!" I saw a youth rushing around me in an anxious circle gathering up the money. It was placed in a little sack and bound with cord. My head was lifted by the hair and the sack was shoved in my open panting mouth as I grunted in astonishment. Clapping sounded all around, shouts of "good boy!" and teasing demands, how had I liked the paddling, would I like another tomorrow night?

I was being yanked up and rushed down the wooden steps, marched out of the brilliant torch light and away from the turntable. I was thrown forward on my hands and knees and driven through the crowd until I saw my Master's boots, and glancing up, saw his languid figure leaning against the wooden counter of a little wine stall. He gazed down at me without a smile or a word, and taking the little sack out of my mouth, weighed it in his right hand, put it away, and continued to look down at me.

I bowed my head. I laid my head in the dust, and felt my hands slide out from under me. I couldn't move, but mercifully there came no order to move. The din of the square merged into a single sound that was almost like silence.

I felt my Master's hands, soft hands, the hands of a gentleman, lifting me. I saw a little bath stall before me where a man waited with a scrub brush and a bucket. Quite firmly I was led towards it and given over to the man, who, setting down his cup of wine, took a coin gratefully from my Master. Then he reached out and silently forced me down into a squat over the steaming bucket.

At any other moment in the past months, the rough public bathing on the edge of an indifferent crowd would have been unspeakable. Now it was nothing but voluptuous. I was barely conscious as the warm water poured over my smoldering welts, of it sluicing away the sticking egg yoke and dust that clung to it; of my cock and balls being well soaked and much too swiftly oiled to alleviate their grievous hunger.

My anus was thoroughly lubricated and I hardly noticed the fingers driving in and out, and still I seemed to feel the shape of the phallus stretching me. The hair of my head was rubbed dry and combed. My pubic hair was brushed, and even the hair between my seething, quivering buttocks was combed out to right and left, all of this completed so fast that in moments I knelt before my Master again, and heard his command to precede him to the road along the ramparts.

Nicolas' Bedchamber

When we reached the road, my Master told me to stand up, and told me to "walk." Without hesitation, I kissed both his boots and then rose to face the road and obey him. I put my hands behind my neck, just as I had done when I had been made to march. But quite suddenly he caught me in his arms and turned me and put my hands down at my sides and kissed me.

For a moment I was so perplexed that I didn't respond, but then my mouth returned the kiss, almost feverishly. My mouth opened to receive his tongue, and I had to move my hips back so that my cock would not rub against him.

My body seemed to lose the very last of its strength, all my remaining vigor collected in my organ. Then he drew back a little and fed on my mouth and I could hear my own loud sighs echoing up the walls. Tentatively I lifted my arms, and he did nothing to prevent it as I embraced him. I felt the smooth velvet of his tunic, and the soft silk of his hair. This was almost ecstasy.

My cock twitched, lengthened, and all the soreness in me pulsed with renewed fire. But he let me go, turned me and put my hands on my neck again. "You may walk slowly," he said. His lips brushed my cheek and the mingling of distasteful and longing in me was so enormous, I was almost in tears again.

Only a few open coaches moved along the drive, pleasure riders it seemed, making a broad circle when they reached the square and turning back to rush past us. I saw slaves in brilliant silver harnesses with heavy silver bells tinkling from their cocks and a rich townswoman in a bright red velvet hood and cape, snapping a long silver strap at these ponies.

It crossed my mind that my Master should get an equipage like that, and I smiled to myself at the quality of the thought.

But I was still shaken by the kiss, and still thoroughly vanquished by the Public Turntable. As my Master stepped into stride beside me, I thought I must be dreaming. I felt the velvet of his sleeve against my back, and his hand touching my shoulder. I was so debilitated I had to make myself move forward.

His hand curling around the back of my neck sent a tingling all through me. The knot in my cock ached and tightened, but I luxuriated in these sensations. I half closed my eyes, seeing the lanterns and torches ahead like little explosions of light, and now we were far from the noise of the public place, and my Master walked so close to me that I felt his tunic against my hip, and his hair touching my shoulder. Our shadows leapt out before us for a moment as we passed a torchlit door, and we were almost the same height, one naked man and the other elegantly clothed, carrying a strap in his hand. Then darkness.

We had come to his house, and as he turned the big iron key in the heavy oak door, he said softly, "Down on your knees," and I obeyed, entering the world of the dimly lit polished hallway. I moved beside him until he paused at a door, and I found myself entering a new and strange bedchamber.

Candles were lit. There was a little fire on the grate, perhaps to dry the dampness of the stone walls, and the great hulk of a bed made out of carved oak against the wall, its paneled roof and three sides inlaid with green satin. There were books here, too, old scrolls as well as the leather volumes. And a desk with pens, and again the paintings. But it was a larger room than the other, more shadowy yet more comforting.

I did not dare to hope or fear what might happen here. My Master was removing his clothes, and as I watched amazed, he peeled off everything, neatly folding it on the chest at the foot of the bed. Then he turned to face me. His sex was as alive and hard as mine. It was slightly thicker but no longer, and his pubic hair was the same stark white as the hair of his head that looked almost ethereal in the light of the oil lamps.

He turned down the green coverlet of the bed, and beckoned for me to come up into it.

I was so stunned I could not move for a moment. I looked at the fine weaving of the linen sheets. For three nights and two days I had been in the crude stocks at the castle, and I had expected to sleep here in some miserable corner on bare boards. But this was the least of it. I could see the light playing on the Master's tightly muscled chest and arms and the cock seeming to grow as I watched it. I glanced up right into his dark blue eyes and came forward to the bed, and climbed up on it, still on my knees, and he knelt on the coverlet facing me. I had my back to the pillows and he slipped his arms around me and kissed me again. Answering the strong bold sucking of his mouth, I couldn't stop the tears from coarsening down my cheeks or the sob from sticking in my throat as I tried to conceal it.

He urged me back gently and with his left hand he lifted his balls and his cock. I dropped down and kissed his balls immediately. I ran my tongue over them as I had been taught to do with the ponies in the stable, mouthing them and feeling them tenderly with my teeth, and then I took the cock in my mouth and pulled hard on it, a little startled by its thickness. It was no thicker than the large phallus I had been made to wear, I thought. No, just that thick, and the dizzying thought came to me that he had prepared me for himself, and when I thought of him entering me that way himself I became almost uncontrollably excited. I sucked and licked at the cock, tasting it, and thinking this is the Master and not one of the other slaves, this is the man who has all day silently commanded me, subjugating me, defeating me, and I felt my legs slide apart and my belly dip down and my buttocks rise in a spontaneous motion as I sucked, groaning softly.

BORN TO RAISE HELL

BORN TO RAISE HELL is a two hour hard-on. At least that is what I had the night they screened it for me. It is a classic in Leather SM.

I almost wept when he lifted my face. He pointed to a small jar on a little shelf in the paneled wall. At once I opened it. The cream in it was thick and pure white. He pointed to his cock and at once I took some of the cream on my fingers. But before I applied it I kissed the tip, and tasted a little trace of moisture. I dabbed my tongue into the tiny hole, gathering all that was there of the clear fluid.

Then I rubbed in the cream well, even coating the balls, and smoothing the thick curly white hair with the cream until it was glistening. The cock was dark red now, and shuddering.

The Master put out his hands to me. Tentatively, I dabbed more cream onto his fingers. He gestured for more, and I applied it. "Turn around," he said. I did so, my heart racing. I felt the cream in my anus, rubbed deep and thick, and then his hands wrapped around me, the left scooping my balls up and binding the loose flesh to my cock so that my balls were pushed forward. I gave a short desperate imploring cry, and I felt his organ slide into me.

It found no resistance, my anus coming alive around it in violent spasms. I was lanced again as surely as I had been by the phallus, and with hard slapping thrusts I felt it jabbed deeper and deeper. The hand around my cock forced it out straight and I felt the Master's right hand surrounding the tip, the cream slipping around the tortured flesh and then the hand tightening and riding the cock up and down in rhythm with the thrusts into my backside.

My loud groans echoed through the room. All my pent up passion jetted out, my hips rocking violently back and forth, the cock splitting me open, and my own organ shot its fluids in wild spurts out of me.

For a moment I saw nothing. I rode the spasms in darkness. I hung on the cock that skewered me. And gradually, on the very end of the wave, I felt my cock rising again. My Master's greased hands were coaxing it to rise. It had been tormented too long to be so easily satisfied. Yet the rally was excruciating. I almost whimpered to be released, but my whimpers sounded too much like sighs of pleasure. His hand was working me well, his cock pumping me, and I heard myself giving the same short, open-mouthed cries I'd given under the Whipping Master's paddle on the turntable. I felt my cock jerking as it had then and saw all those faces around me, and I knew I was alone in the Master's bedchamber and that I was his slave and he wouldn't let me go until he had brought it again thundering out of me.

My cock was remembering nothing. It was driving back and forth through his slick fingers, and his thrusts in my rear grew longer, faster, rougher. I felt myself coming to the pinnacle as his hips slammed against my scalded rear. And as he let out a low shuddering moan, jerking wildly into me, I felt my cock explode again in the tight sheath of his hand and this time it seemed slower, deeper, more utterly devastating. I collapsed back against him, my head rolling on his shoulder, his cock thumping and twitching inside me.

We did not move for a long moment. Then he lifted me and pushed me towards the pillows. I lay down and he lay down beside me. His face was turned away and I stared drowsily at his naked shoulder and white hair. I should have slept irresistibly. But I didn't.

I kept thinking I was alone with him in this bedchamber and he had not yet sent me away, and all that had happened to me would not recede. It stayed ever present in my mind. It made my tongue catch in my mouth as if on the verge of speech. It made my eyes remain open.

A quarter of an hour passed, perhaps. The candles gave a lovely dim golden light, and I leaned forward and kissed my Master's shoulder. He did not stop me. I kissed the small of his back and then I kissed his buttocks. Smooth, free of all welts and red marks, virginal, the buttocks of a Master in the village, a Lord or Sovereign at the castle.

I felt him stir under me but he didn't speak. I kissed the crack between his buttocks and darted my tongue down to the pink circle of his anus. I felt him quicken slightly. He moved his legs ever so slightly apart, and I pushed the buttocks a little wider. I lapped at the little pink mouth, tasting its strange sourness. I bit at it with my teeth.

My own cock swelled against the sheet. I inched down in the bed and moved gently on top of his legs, crouching over him, and I pressed my cock against his legs as I licked at the little pink mouth and stabbed my tongue into it.

Softly I heard him say, "You may take me if you like."
I felt the same paralyzing astonishment I'd felt when he told me to get into the bed. I kneaded and kissed his silky buttocks and then I shot up, covering him, pressing my mouth to the nape of his neck and sliding my hands under him. I found his cock already stiff and I held it in my left hand as I juttied my own cock into him. It was tight and scratching and unspeakably luscious.

He gave a little wince. But I was still well greased and it slid back and forth easily. I clasped both my hands around his cock and pushed up so that he was on his knees just barely, his face still pressed into the pillow. Then I galloped him hard under me, spanking my belly against the soft clean buttocks as I heard him moan, pulling his cock stiffer and stiffer, until when I heard him cry out, I released into him, his semen spilling over my fingers.

This time when I lay back I knew I could sleep. My buttocks simmered under me, and the welts itched on the backs of my knees, but I was contented. I looked up at the green satin canopy over my head and consciousness slid away from me. I knew he was pulling the coverlet over us, and that he had put out the candles, and I knew his arm was over my chest. Then I knew nothing, except that I was sinking down and down and the soreness in all my muscles and in my flesh was lovely.

THE LEATHER NOTEBOOK

by Larry Townsend

Dear Sir,

I am 25 years old, studying in a Roman Catholic seminary—still five years short of ordination as a priest. Although I have been actively gay since my early teens, I have never gotten into the SM scene, but I have always wanted to be a "bottom," a slave. I've answered a Drummer ad, and have made contact with a guy in a nearby city, but I am hesitant to take this next step...with him, or with any other opportunity that might present itself. I'm concerned, on the one hand, with the potential physical danger, and on the other with the long-term decision I will have to make. Is there a future in being a slave? Am I being foolish to even consider this in light of my entire life's orientation? Any thoughts you might be able to give me would be greatly appreciated.

Seminary Student

Dear Student,

Although I have known a number of clergymen (Catholic and otherwise) who have been involved in male-to-male SM, each has had to make his own unique compromise with his conscience. At this point, I would be doing you a disservice if I suggested that you cast aside all your previous hopes and plans to plunge headlong into the world of leather-SM. You haven't even tried it yet, and I assure you that the reality is going to be quite different from whatever masturbatory fantasies you have experienced. Why don't you follow through with your present contact, and go from there. You seem to have time on your side. You also seem intelligent enough to weigh the alternatives and make your own decision before the final commitment—vows, etc. There are, of course, a number of gay religious groups: Dignity, which is Catholic, the MCC, and a large number of smaller denominations. You might look into these, not so much with an eye to a transfer of allegiance, but in the beginning simply as a place to meet and talk with other guys who have confronted your problem and dealt with it in their own way—how successfully, you will have to judge for yourself.

Dear Larry,

In reading your comments about flogging in England, I would like to offer a few corrections. This is a prime interest of mine, so I have done quite a bit of research on the subject. As far as I can ascertain, no public floggings have taken place in the British Isles in this century; but flogging as a judicial punishment was still used, mainly for minor crimes of violence (mugging, etc.) until 1948, when it was abolished on the mainland, but retained in the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands. As to the method, men over 18 took it standing up strapped to a wooden or metal frame, across the back. Boys 17 and under were birched across the buttocks while being held against a table by two or more prison officers. The actual number of lashes was usually quite low, commonly six to twelve, but with such force that blood was usually drawn on the first stroke and the victim would often pass out.

In the Channel Islands flogging remains on the statute book (as does hanging), but has not been used since the 1950s, and probably won't be due to the European Court ruling concerning the Isle of Man. There it was abolished for men over 21 in 1970, but retained for younger offenders. In 1980 one young man who had been birched took his case to the European Court of Human Rights and won. The Court declared birching to be "a cruel and degrading punishment, contrary to the European Charter of Rights."

Reader, Ontario

Dear Reader,

Oh, for the good old days! I certainly thank you for your comments, much of which had to be cut due to space limitations. Still, I could not help but think, as I read your letter, that the incidence of corporal punishment seems to bear a direct, inverse correlation to the increase in violent crimes. Interesting, but I guess the learned gentlemen on the bench know what they're doing.

Dear Larry,

In reading your remarks in The Leatherman's Handbook II regarding the Chicago Hellfire Club, I wonder at your absence of comment on San Francisco's The 15 Association. My Master and I are both involved in this club's activities, and we (all the members) try to be for San Francisco what Hellfire is for Chicago. Although we don't claim as many associate members around the country and the world as they do, we do have associate members in about half a dozen states and several foreign countries.

Michael, San Francisco

Dear Michael,

Afterthought, in all things, is easier than forethought. When I wrote the particular chapter to which you refer, I was more concerned with illustrating a point than with giving any specific group a pat on the back. I would have mentioned The 15 Association, except at that point I wasn't sure if they were still in existence. The last letter I had sent to their post office box had come back as undeliverable, and no one of my acquaintance seemed to know what had become of the group. Naturally, as soon as the manuscript was typeset and edited, I began to get all kinds of information about The 15. If there should be a "Handbook III", I'll certainly remember you—that is, if we all make it through the '80s.

(If you would like to have Larry Townsend address a particular problem or issue, you can write him via Leather Notebook, Drummer, 964 Folsom Street, San Francisco, CA 94107.)

rites of endurance

The pain and aggravation are continuous and my face is a hardened mask to hide these torments. I walk up and down the halls and through the streets or throw myself about my room to ease the agony. I am tempted to let the bindings loose, to undo the buckles and release the snaps but as I reach for the taut straps of my leather harness, my hands shake and having endured this much, I give in to my lust and hitch the gear up one more notch. I become dizzy and weak and utter involuntary gasps as the studded strips of the harness bite the flesh of my tightly trussed loins. I see nothing and can only think one thought: to continue on, and I concentrate on this bare philosophy: I will not let up on the rituals, there is no end, and if I can last this long I will endure it a few minutes more.

Text: Kirby Congdon
Photography: Mark I. Chester

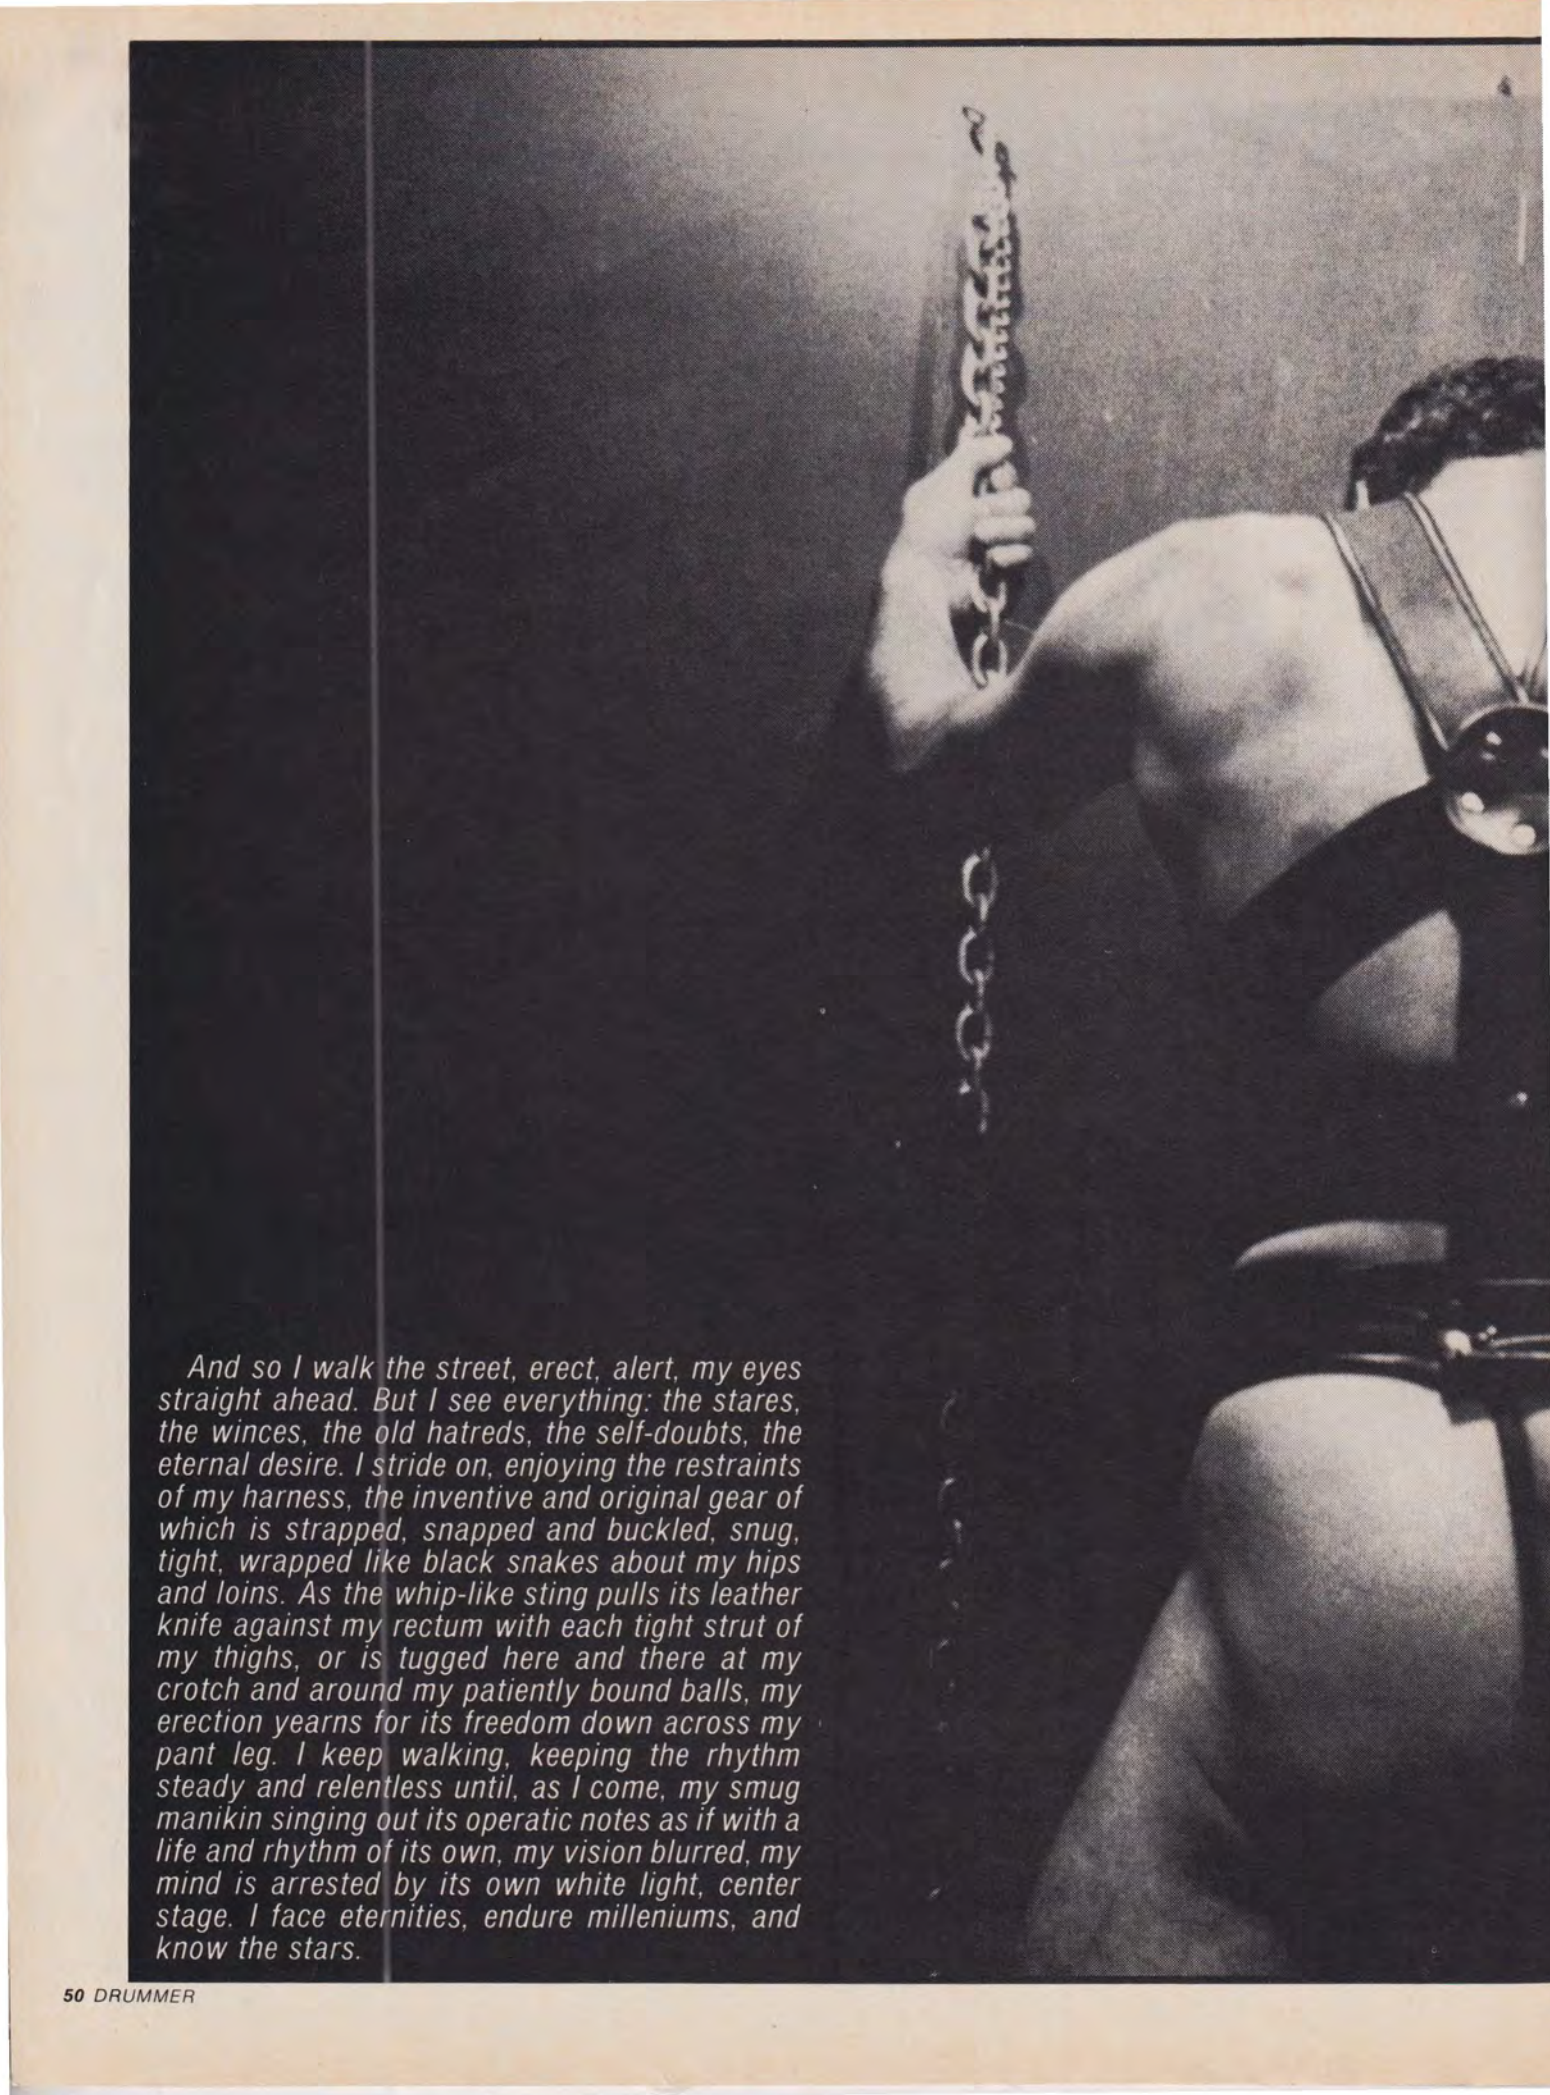

The mastery of my inflictions is a pleasing discipline because I prove my survival. In the midst of my tortures, the batterings of my body, in my drunken state of dedication, my contentment is supreme. My only anxiety is that my punishments may stop and this possibility alone keeps me from giving in to death's release because of the strange and inordinate love of life I have and the sweetness I feel in its richness.

So I intensify the pain of my labors, like a religious novice humbling himself still more in self-denial before the prancings of his current godhead, and I myself show off that pain like a muscular Hercules, proud and abused, glorious and immortal, exercising the keen satisfactions he finds in the even deeper sins of his lavish and self-indulgent displays of excess.

And so I walk the street, erect, alert, my eyes straight ahead. But I see everything: the stares, the winces, the old hatreds, the self-doubts, the eternal desire. I stride on, enjoying the restraints of my harness, the inventive and original gear of which is strapped, snapped and buckled, snug, tight, wrapped like black snakes about my hips and loins. As the whip-like sting pulls its leather knife against my rectum with each tight strut of my thighs, or is tugged here and there at my crotch and around my patiently bound balls, my erection yearns for its freedom down across my pant leg. I keep walking, keeping the rhythm steady and relentless until, as I come, my smug manikin singing out its operatic notes as if with a life and rhythm of its own, my vision blurred, my mind is arrested by its own white light, center stage. I face eternities, endure milleniums, and know the stars.

But I continue walking, taking pride in composure, in the mastery of the self and ignore the blot that seeps through my trousers or the rivulet that searches its way down my leg. I allow myself the indulgence of a few deep breaths, as a weight lifter, still staggering from his load, admits the exertion that identifies his glory, as if the struggle gave more value to the work than its completion of it.

And so this is what it is like, this is what it is, to take a walk one afternoon down a street. It is a continual dying, but also this: the birth and the rebirth. And the coming and going are not for each other but for their own sake, neither death nor life able to recognize the other, except as pain. And the pain after the climax is real and terrible. My eyes are lost again, this time in their own tears. But I shall walk on, like royalty, with equanimity. I recover. And prepare myself for another one of these devastating communions with that peripatetic God who made me and whose will I am, and who, without me, would not, could not, exist. He is my victim, and I, the master—in my chains.

—"Promenade", from Fantoccini: A Little Book of Memories by Kirby Congdon, published by Dennis Cooper for Little Caesar Press, 1981.

LEAN, INTENSE, SENSUAL
Bi-sex man is interested in locating another natural man who realizes his need for a buddy who knows the honest gut-pleasure—through trust—of discovering and sharing the touch, smell, taste and sound only a man comfortable with himself can provide. The energy I want to share is so basic and honest, it seems few "gays" know it exists. Long, slow, mind-n-soul fuckin' is where it all begins. If you, too, need a man who'll openly and proudly share what he knows and has, you may have found your partner! I'm 6ft., 150 lbs., 43 yrs., greying black hair, beard, and moustache; with a natural, uncut dick that'll hang a heavy 7 inches for the buddy that talks to it right. Dig sweat, hair, holes, nipples, foreskin, low-swingin' balls, and other natural delights. If you're interested and got the balls to talk straight, shoot a no bull-shit note my way. Travel is possible. Box 0061.

"Yeah, I've always been into really hairy guys... why do you ask?"

You'll laugh, you'll cry, you'll blush with embarrassment as you experience Carlo Carlucci's satiric and right-on-target humor in his first book of cartoons. Carlo, as he is affectionately known to readers of Drummer and The Advocate, takes us on a relentlessly witty excursion through the first years of coming out and a wide-eyed look at every gay lifestyle from leather to fern—culminating in the highlight of the book, "The War Between The Machos and The Sissies."

A collection to treasure, He Ain't Heavy, He's My Lover makes a perfect gift—for yourself, or for someone very special.

DRUM

INTERNATIONAL LEATHER SCENE

BEHIND INTERCHAIN

If I had a dime for every time I've heard (or used) the term "brotherhood" to reference that special, mutual regard we leathermen have for one another, I'd be a rich man. Although using it hasn't made me rich, experiencing it has made me a happy man.

There is brotherhood, however, and then there is Brother—as in Big. A bit about him before getting to us:

Although the flood of Orwellian references we've already seen this year is perhaps becoming a little tiring, the concepts behind those references constitute the need for a continuous vigilance. Unhappily, we are still subject to varying degrees of the threat (if not the reality) of oppression.

Ask Bryan Darbyshire, publisher of "Men Cruising Men," a quarterly contact leaflet headquartered in London. Zealous police raided Darbyshire's offices last month and confiscated everything but the mailing lists, which he wisely kept in another location. Victoria, it seems, continues to rule Great Britain from her grave, with the aid of modern enforcement.

This incident, as we all know, is a repeat performance of similar incidences of oppression ad nauseum that cumulatively test our will to love whomever we wish in whatever style, without government interference.

It's been said that the strongest cable known to man is made of pubic hair. One would think that governments and law enforcement agencies would have long since made note of that fact. That and the fact that, as a sexual minority, our ties with one another are made of that cable—a cable that is cemented and re-cemented with new loads of come regularly. Because it feels so good, it's very unlikely that we'll ever stop. And there are so many of us, bound together by specialized sexual and social interests, that organizations operate in locations all over the world to serve our needs. Through those organizations, which include clubs and businesses, leathermen form a vast network of the above-mentioned pubic-hair cable.

Most of us involved to any degree, however, know that sex, regardless of how ravenously pursued, isn't all there is between the leathermen who make up our numbers. Members of even our most clandestine organizations occasionally pull themselves away from the unspeakably lurid action (but only for, say, 10% of their waking hours) to develop, believe it or not, friendships with one another. So many have done this, in fact, that some leathermen actually have more friends than sex partners. Whether or not that's universally true, what is true is that most of us have friends with whom we may or may not have sex. It is also true that whether or not we know him, the sight of another leatherman on the street sparks a REIGN'S END: One last look at Lorn Hardcastle (for now, anyway), who's drawing close to the end of his reign as 1983 Mr. Outpost Toronto (Canada), and who will best be remembered as the 1st Runner-Up in the 1983 Mr. International Leather Contest. Or maybe he'll best be remembered as the Best Wet Dream of 1983. Or maybe as the 1984 Leather Valentine, a title he deserves, even if it doesn't exist. Chances are you'll see more of Lorn Hardcastle in 1984, and 1985, and... Photo by ManFest/Canada.

feeling of regard for him. This is an element of the brotherhood mentioned at the beginning of this column. Our clubs and coalitions of clubs are manifest examples of brotherhood at work.

A case in point is Interchain. It's a relatively informal contact club with an efficient communications system to facilitate intercourse, both social and sexual. According to its published promotional material, "Interchain is an international organisation exclusively for leather, levi, uniform and SM guys, with members in the USA, Canada, South America, Australia, New Zealand, Europe, North Africa and the Middle East." Every three months members receive a plain brown envelope containing a list of other members who are seeking contact with "persons of specific interests." Members are entitled to have their names included on this list, which includes names, addresses, phone numbers, and information about specific interests that is printed in a code decipherable only by use of a code key provided to members when they first join. (Members sign an agreement when they join which states that they will provide neither the list nor the code key to anyone else, in whole or in part).

"Membership in Interchain is what each member decides to make of it," said Artie Haber, the US Director of Interchain. "Most of us have made good friends through Interchain."

Haber, 38, has handled Interchain's operations in the U.S. and Canada for the past four years from his New York City digs. His involvement with leather organizations have included a long stint with New York City's now-defunct Cycle MC, as well as having worked as a bartender at Keller's and The Den in their heyday. "My involvement with those people filled me with a lot of love and respect for leather," he said. Another word Haber might have used to describe his feelings for leather is devotion. Although the bulk of Interchain's membership of approximately one thousand leathermen live in Europe, the US and Canadian membership, at just under two hundred and fifty men, consumes a big chunk of Haber's spare time, closet space to store paperwork, and costs him money as well.

"Most non-members think that because we're a contact club, we're a business. Although many contact organizations are businesses, Interchain isn't. The only thing we sell is the club's t-shirt. You'd be amazed at how much money I drag home from my job to spend on Interchain mailing and telephone costs. The greater part of the membership fees we collect here go to Switzerland to cover the printing of our quarterly membership roster," he told me. "But I do this because I love what this organization is about, and have made close friends of many of the members. If it ever became work for me, I'd resign. Since I enjoy it, though, it's more like a hobby."

SLAB PECS STRIKES AGAIN: The second of a proposed twelve Bare Chest contests at The Arena, a popular San Francisco leather bar, netted Australian-born Steve Green (right) as the best example of nipples-on-muscles. Previous winner Mike Merriot (left) and Steve are the first pair of pairs The Arena will use in a 1985 calendar devoted to Bare Chests. We'll keep you abreast as the year fills out. Photo by Rink.

Established by a longtime friend of Haber's, Wolfgang Hein, Interchain will be celebrating its ninth year of operation in May. Although Haber put his head together with Hein to discuss its formation before the cub became a reality, he chose to be "only a member" during the club's first four years. It took Hein that long to convince Haber to solicit, organize and maintain an American membership. "Because he had so long a head start," said Haber, "the European membership is considerably larger than the American."

With approximately a thousand members in more than twenty countries under his wing, Hein's workload has got to be heavy. He's responsible for getting the quarterly roster information together, getting it printed, and mailing it out from his headquarters in Effretikon, Switzerland, to all members outside the US and Canada (he ships those to Haber for distribution). Among his other functions is handling correspondence to and from a special category of members identified as ICS (Interchain Confidential Service). Those are members who don't wish to be contacted directly on an initial basis by other members until they've been screened by one of the Interchain offices. Anyone who wants to make an initial contact with an ICS member must forward their letter to either Haber or Hein, depending upon the location of the ICS member. Haber and Hein are committed to forward this correspondence within forty-eight hours of receipt.

Although Hein bypasses it, Haber produces a quarterly newsletter for US and Canadian members that he mails out with the latest copy of the club roster.

"One of the things the newsletter does, in addition to keeping members abreast of club news, is to provide a vehicle for raising money for AIDS charities. We just completed a raffle by mail, and we're about to start another," said Haber.

Interchain's contributions to various AIDS charities has been heaviest in San Francisco, where local member Alan Selby led the effort for organizing three fundraisers that netted more than $12,000 last year. Selby and partner Peter Jacklin own and operate Mr. S. Products, a leather clothing/toy manufacturing and retail operation with a strong wholesale business in this country and Europe. In spite of the time demands of running that business, Selby secured community participation and handled a myriad of other details such as soliciting donations of raffle and auction items (armed only with altruistic intent and his silver tongue). He teamed up with the management and staffs of three of San Francisco's leather bars—The Brig, Chaps and the SF Eagle—to create two new annual titles ("Daddy" and "Daddy's Boy"), three entertaining benefit events and a strong measure of support for San Francisco's AIDS patients. He's presently working again with Chuck Slaton, owner of Chaps, to produce another event next month. Slated for March 21 at Chaps, the event will combine an auction, drawings for raffle prizes and a contest to pick "Mr. South of Market," a contest title that Drummer relinquished rights to as a donation to the event.

"I encourage members in other cities to duplicate Alan's effort. This organization is about brotherhood, and helping AIDS patients during this crisis is a perfect demonstration of that brotherhood," said Haber. When asked about European involvement in fundraisers for AIDS charities, Haber explained that European members have been given none of the information about AIDS that Americans have. "Right now, if a New Yorker were to say where he lives to someone in a European bar, he'd find himself suddenly standing alone. Europeans are panic stricken. They haven't shown any interest in helping," he said.

Apparently, initial contacts are still accepted by European members, in spite of the AIDS crisis, from selected American members. Established friendships between trans-Atlantic members continue to grow and hospitality is still extended whether or not a sex scene is. This is true largely because of the confidence Interchain members have in one another. This confidence is reinforced (especially important where initial contacts are being considered) by Interchain's careful screening of applicants for new memberships. New members must either be sponsored by another Interchain member or prove membership in an established leather organization. A personal photograph and a detailed application form join any correspondence to form each member's file. Should he violate the club's rules, he's subject to ejection from membership and the rest of Interchain is alerted via an "International Warning List" that notifies everyone that his membership is no longer valid. Although it hasn't happened very often, it's a protection system enforced by each member. Discretion is one of the strictly enforced club rules, as well as considerations like honesty—whether sexual or material. "This self-policing club policy protects both Interchain and our members," explained Haber.

Drummer readers whose interests may cause them to linger over our classified ads may have noticed that one or another of those advertisers have in the past included a note identifying themselves as Interchain members. That membership serves as a solid recommendation.

US and Canadian readers may secure more information about Interchain membership by writing Arthur Haber at Box 410/Downstairs, 132 West 24th Street, New York, NY 10011 (English language inquiries only). Readers located elsewhere in the world should contact Wolf-

MC NEWS & EVENTS

A few of the other clubs that comprise our brotherhood have reported some upcoming events that I'd like to review (too) quickly with the promise of more complete attention in future columns.

The Empire City MC is celebrating its 20th anniversary with a series of events. New York City-based, they're the oldest gay motorcycle club on the East Coast. Anniversary events include the annual Bike Christening, June 1; a Biker's Picnic, June 2; a two-week tour (August 22 through September 5) of the Eastern US that will include a major stop in Washington DC, to play with the Spartan MC at their Marathon Run; and The Run and Celebration (October 5-8) which will include bar tours, bike and people events, Broadway theatre (La Cage aux Folles), dinners, brunch and a final big bash at The Saint. Preregistration forms and more information are available from: 20th Anniversary Committee, Empire City Motorcycle Club, PO Box 2543, GPO, NYC, NY 10116.

Another anniversary: The Crucible MC of Pittsburgh will celebrate its second anniversary the weekend of March 23-25. Events will include contests sponsored by the visiting North Coast Knights of Cleveland, and a "Whips on Wheels" program by the Chicago Hellfire Club. Registration is $45 through Feb. 29, $50 thereafter. For more information, contact: The Crucible MC, Box 2951, Pittsburgh, PA 15230.

A welcome salute to the Cowtown Leather Club, newly formed in Fort Worth, Texas; the newly re-formed Cycle Runners in San Francisco; and the recently formed Superlink in Manchester, England.

A couple of trans-Atlantic notes: London's RMC is planning a snappy club trip to Amsterdam, May 25-28, and last, but definitely not least, those hot sons-of-Vikings, the SLM-Stockholm members, have announced the dates of their Baltic Battle as June 8-11.

By the time this hits the streets, the San Francisco GDI MC will already have held their 10th Anniversary Cocktail Party and Buffet Dinner to kick off a year of events. Congratulations!

Go hug your pet man.

SOMETHING ABOUT DADDIES

Curt MacDowell stopped identifying himself gay-first about the time he first identified himself as gay. He set about a process of self-exposure, leaping across sex barriers—camera to the fore, camera to the rear—with a strong sense of history, humor, pop music, memories of a conventional Indiana boyhood, visions of an unconventional manhood, and the ability to inveigle “straight” men into erotically compromising positions...on film.

Strong, uncluttered images, after 33 MacDowell films, are never put together in the same way, so they're not readily marketable in the usual areas; neither formula “X” nor “experimental,” and not always recognizably gay. He can display women naked and aroused so fondly they can be neither ignored nor demeaned (so much for the ghetto purist); or take his “virgins”—Curt's word for the heterosexual male introduced to getting his cock sucked by someone else who has one—and mix-and-match them with his-ors-hers fantasies (there goes gender parity with its definitive separation of the sexes); maybe spoof the gothic thriller and hilariously send up Tennessee Williams (MacDowell's Thundercrack) with explicit, graphic, all-out fucking action (dreadfully disturbing to the audience to have to deal with uncontrollable laughter and hard-ons at the same time); have Ronnie narrate a hustling experience in what amounts to the ultimate amateur visual classified ad (there goes the advertizing biz); and direct his own uncensored Confessions (this is my life—want some, buddy?)

While MacDowell's films find acceptance wherever they show, reluctant to rave as reviewers might be considering the ordinary hang-ups, they haven't a permanent niche. They could turn up at New York's Museum of Modern Art or in a church basement, underground cinematheques, the British Film Archives, universities, art houses, regular rep theatres or private homes. Tributes and retrospectives are emerging at international film festivals in Berlin, Seattle, San Francisco (Gay), Hollywood (1st Erotic), and this month in Antwerp, Belgium.

As many artists do, MacDowell is working through his medium to get at something else. “Discovering how I got the way I am...What is this impasse between heterosexual men and women? They created me, but...” Curt explores a step further in his latest film, Stand By: “The biggest myste of life is man's prick—that it dictates everything he does. How am I different from my father?” Casual, inevitable questions that go through everyone's mind at one time or another, but, when subjected to the MacDowell Method, come out something like this:

Stand By is dedicated to a prime-time image of the Old Man, a certain snapshot of MacDowell's father that captured a generation ago what nobody's pop usually reveals (not the revelation of what Curt calls his “Ozzie and Harriet” type folks, anyway)—an insouciant pose on a sunny beach, a little fuzzy in focus to put the stamp of time on it; faraway man with an easy smile, an unaccustomed squint, and nothing under the white duck trousers but something else to smile about—large, long and lazy. A photo to jack off to when you're thirteen, if your mom doesn't go red and burn it.

Other frequent inset episodes (with variations) are Sis lounging on the bed, scanning through the family album, conjuring up a succession of male visitors; “found footage” of '60s San Francisco or the hunkier passers-by; in and out of Snakefinger's “Beatnik” party; or an afghan rippling back of a firm, fullsculptured ass, waiting for something to get around to it. Real men trade off with potent ghosts and mirrors don't reflect images—they correct them. The whole is a memorial to the senior MacDowell, immortalized at his peak, who died two years ago. It's pieces of everyone's history hung together in swift montage breaks accompanied by complete songs (the “record album,” as in Taboo: The Single and the LP, is a favored MacDowell format).

MacDowell's just had what he thinks is a crucial birthday and Stand By is a present, a celluloid extension of the American Dream...flag, Mom and apple pie fragmented and blown through the 16mm looking-glass lens comes out: fag, Dad...and more apple pie.

Stand-by: Something familiar and strong to lean on; a power pole to hitch your wires to and switch on the juice.

Stand by! The media call to attention—stop, look and listen; this is a temporary interruption for an important message.

Stand By Your Man.

DRUMMEDIA VIDEO

PSYCHOSEX

Let's start with Gentleman Dan, one of four men who appear in solo sections of Old Reliable VT 17. First off, Dan is no gentleman. Psychotic, probably. Foul-mouthed, assuredly. Sexy—that depends on how abusive you like your tricks. Physically appealing, especially if you like lean young hard bodies spotted with tattoos. Gentleman Dan is a street punk, pure and simple; tough, opportunistic, insincere, callous, dangerous, a social parasite. The kind of mythical stud that preys on passive gays. The alleged "straight" man homosexuals are accused of sexually coveting (for those of you who believe all that psychobabble bullshit).

Let me guess he's about 24 or 25 years old. It's hard to tell in the drug milieu exactly how old anyone is, speed and MDA and whatever tears the body down so fast. His body has the hard lean look of the streets; healthy, to be sure, because it's hard in only 25 years to destroy a body completely; it's working hard to keep itself maintained. Not the flush of real health, but the pale facade of leanness that passes for strength under the right lamppost, in the shadows of the right doorway. I don't know for a fact that Gentleman Dan is a street hustler—just like I don't know his age for a fact, or that he takes drugs for a fact—but that is the impression I have of him from his stint on this videotape. Experience makes him "readable," and he reads like a thug.

All right, someone somewhere is saying to stop being so snide—and who knows, maybe Gentleman Dan is, deep down inside, your basic nice guy, gentle to a fault. I doubt it. I'm sure, even if it's true, he doesn't want you to think so. He goes out of his way to reiterate how "wonderful" and "desirable" and "straight" he is; how superior his "straightness" is to your faggotry. How sick you are for watching him.

That's right, Old Reliable VT 17 is a videotape about straight boys. Or at least self-declared straight boys.

Four specimens of alleged-heterosexuality parade (sometimes literally) before the camera, strip, talk, flex their muscles (in some case muscles is a metaphor) and beat off. A few have a few words for the viewer. A couple talk to the cameraman. Gentleman Dan talks about the cameraman as well.

Old Reliable began by producing audio tapes (which they still do), mainly sexual conversations with rough trade types, ex-cons, hustlers, a few butch queens thrown in for good measure. But rough trade, as a class, has changed over the years. What used to mean blowing a declared-heterosexual while he called you a "dirty faggot" has evolved into a complex array of sexual acts that are still based on humiliation, but much closer to SM than disgust, and an SM with all its trappings of consent.

It's too easy to attack a gay man's desire to copulate with heterosexuals. Like too much else in civilization, the labels come quickly to the tip of the tongue: self-contempt, repressed guilt, improper toilet training, a list ad nauseum. What is seldom taken into consideration is how permeated the mythology of heterosexuality is in our gay culture, how scant are role models without feet of clay. While few cosmopolitan homosexuals would readily admit it over cocktails in their upwardly-mobile designer living rooms, the case is too often some teenage gay male on his knees sucking off a truck-driver in a highway restroom and learning the litany of heterosexual oppression while he becomes orally adept at fulfilling his own not-always-understood sexual desires. While heterosexuals are unquestionably the worst possible sexual role model for the budding gay man, they still dominate that field in all but the most advanced environments.

There is also the position that there are no real heterosexuals, especially when one finds another man's mouth attached to the end of an alleged heterosexual's sexual organ. As Boyd MacDonald put it (about alleged-heterosexuals who reiterate their self-proclaimed classification while unbuckling their pants), "They are all actors."

The "act" in VT 17 is a ritual, to be sure; proved over the ages to hold some sway. Both roles are great deceptions—like the finest theatrical fare—with both parties confident each has turned in the better performance. The heterosexual postures: I was so drunk I didn't know it was a man sucking me off. I need the money and if this slimy fag wants to suck my dick, he'll have to pay for the privilege. I can't get at my girlfriend, she's out of town/on the rag, and this fag's mouth is second-best. The homosexual postures: He thinks I'm being humiliated, when the truth is he's sacrificing his precious heterosexuality by giving in. He thinks he's straight, but he's prostituting his straightness to me like a whore/like a woman. By seducing this heterosexual I conquer society's rejection of my gayness.

There are enough adages and untruths about the relationship between heterosexuals and gay men to fill volumes, which is pretty much what has happened. Polarized relations within gay society line up behind two absolutes that are as miscalculated as any other socio-sexual hypothesis: Gay men who desire non-gay men hold themselves in self-contempt (and) Gay men who seduce non-gay men liberate both themselves and their object of seduction. The reality lies somewhere between both myths.

VT 17 has another side, as an expose of the frailty of heterosexuality and its posture. For the sake of argument let's assume that the four men who appear on this tape are not total strangers to either the filmmaker or the concept of homosexuality (the evidence points in that direction). There is a degree of trust between camera and subject. The subject believes—correctly or otherwise—that the camera will faithfully record his desirability, his "straightness," his physical attributes all at their best and therefore most seductive advantage, reinforcing and sharpening the main draw—the straight man allowing his sexuality to be explored and admired from the safety of a technological distance.

But the camera does not lie, at least not much, anyway. A myth cannot be sustained beyond a certain point; the myth begins to crumble, finally to dissolve. At one point, in an outbreak of psychosis that is probably VT 17's high-watermark (as well as a visual page from Krafft-Ebing), Gentleman Dan screams that the viewer is "sick" for sitting there and watching him spread open his asshole, then adds that he himself is even "sicker" than the viewer for doing it—a tirade that erupts into a volcano of verbal abuse until the subject seems to come unhinged and demands that the camera be turned off.

In another episode the subject collapses (the actual disability edited) while playing "boxer" for the camera. A visual jump reveals the voice of the cameraman soothing the "failed" lightweight, and the subject admitting he is not used to such over-taxing exercise. In other words, he is unable to live up to the lie.

But sex itself, while being the ultimate reality, may equally be the ultimate deception, a consistent if seeming inconsistency, and VT 17 illustrates that the lies about heterosexuality are everywhere.

Structurally, as a document, VT 17 is weak. The rote of four men presented in almost exactly the same set piece could have been more creatively undertaken. The four men were asked to do two or three of four things: show off their body, masturbate, talk to the camera, exercise/work out. Without sacrificing what is obviously conceived as cinema verite, VT 17 could do with some flexibility. Especially if this number is part of a long line of similar sexual extrapolations.

There is, beyond the obvious, an audience (albeit small) for the material contained in VT 17 among those gays who have grown up post-liberation in totally nurturing environments. (It also occurs to me that homophobic heterosexual women would adore it.) Still, one whose taste buds towards oppressive heterosexuals might well be satiated through this indirect approach.

Old Reliable is to be congratulated for excessive bravery. If the material is not all sham (these street punks really a harmless but convincing act), then the filmmaker laid it on the line even undertaking to create this specialized genre of porn making. Either that, or he is the ultimate masochist.

Tech quality is above average, the one camera set-up is used well and is fluid more times than not. All in all, rarified but damn-near unforgettable.

THE DEVIL & THE DEEP

Back in the heyday of Hollywood, the studio was boss; actors and directors and screenwriters worked, pretty much, nine to five, churning out product (an inside-business expression for... just about anything), treating assignments like assignments, occasionally stumbling over a little gem of a script and giving it an extra something, hoping the front office wouldn't come down like a ton of bricks for getting too experimental, too artsy, too non-commercial.

Sure, there was the isolated masterpiece; classic films where the reins on the director weren't too tight; titles that themselves make up the legend of the legendary Hollywood heyday: Casablanca, Lost Weekend, On The Waterfront, A Streetcar Named Desire and the like. But for the most part, Hollywood turned out ten times as much dreck as it did outstanding productions. It's the same in porn.

Street Kids, directed by Christopher Rage; 1984; Live Video Inc.; features entire cast; 64 minutes, color, direct video; $89 plus $3 shipping; Beta/VHS; Live Video Inc., 165 West 46th Street, Suite 812, New York, NY 10036. Brochure available. Signed statement required.

The thing that broke the back of Hollywood was the unique signature of certain directors that was permeated throughout their work, however insincere the source material. Directors like George Cukor, Fritz Lang, John Huston, Otto Preminger—working under fairly cut-and-dried studio formula—created extraordinary films, not all of which were understood or heralded when they were first released. But this backbone of semi-independence became the mainstay of memorable cinema, the auteur film.

It's the same in porn. Miles and miles of mindless fucking and sucking are supplanted and surpassed by a handful of creative, visionary, daring experimentalists who have and are still shaping the face, if not the very nature of erotica. Unfortunately, you can count them on the fingers of one hand and still have room to hold a cocktail.

High at the head of this rare class is Christopher Rage, extraordinarily so—his films, more and more, are less and less like what has come before. He strains at the boundary of traditional porn filmmaking (with one foot in film and the other in video technology) at the vibrating edge of what is acceptable sexual stimulus. He is, as of late, simply not interested in remaking the tried and true boy-meets-boy; everything here is at the mercy of the vision.

The effect? Devastating more times than not. The commercial possibilities? We are a culture that craves plastic above all other textures.

Street Kids is 64 minutes of porn verite structured as a private viewing by the devil of his latest collection of sexual misfits. The salon is held, for the most part, in an unfinished room in a building that—mortar and bricks—strains to reach the clouds. Individuals are taken to the fire escape, where they chant their histories in the best man-on-the-street talking-head style. Some come from broken homes, some do not. Some hustle, some never have. A few reach down and scratch their balls out of camera range, so engrossed are they in the act of making confession. Each is far beyond the salvation expounded by the establishment world of a house, a car, thee and me and fidelity. They are as the title implies.

Who cares? That seems to be the point—but not in your run-of-the-mill social documentary way. Who cares is a tall, tuxedoed figure with long painted fingernails and a shaven head (Christopher Rage himself), who sings the video's opening and closing song.

Yes, this porn production has a song, and not your "The-grass-is-green-and-so-are-you-I-love-you-so-much-it-hurts" variety, but an upbeat, wicked, finger-snapping ditty that adds a heavyweight air to ethereal visuals.

But, you see, Christopher Rage is like that; never giving an inch, never cutting it down to a dull roar—when he can have Niagara Falls or The Grand Coolie Dam instead. Take it to the very edge of possibilities, that seems to be his motto.

But what about the balls of Street Kids? Well, there are fifteen pairs, all, except one, in a perpetual state of near-eruption. The Street Kids range from a green-eyed Latino named Eddie with a fat ten-inch cock to a blond Marine bodybuilder with slab pecs and thighs that make thunder. It's all here, in solos, pairs, three-ways, groups; sex repeated in all its infinite variety under the devil's sincere and watchful eyes. The assortment is fairly representative of the male side of the human race—the devil's domain is, after all, all-inclusive.

An organic religious quality? Okay, we'll go with that—Street Kids has an organic religious quality. Missing are the sterility and the ritualization; otherwise, what we have here is sex in a pagan church.

JANE BONDA? YOU BET YOUR ASS!

It had to happen, and it couldn't have been better parodied than in Jane Bonda's Bizarre Workout, the world's first SM aerobics workout tape. That's right, Jane Bonda (played to the hilt by Pia Sands) comes complete with spike-heeled boots, studded collar and whip, ready to discipline her class (Robert Lakewood, Melanie Scott and some unnamed others) into shape. Or...well, you know what happens when the instructor tells you to do something and you don't do it or don't do it right...you do it again! And again! And if you still can't cut the mustard, you get the paddle, or the whip, or have to ride the vibrating bicycle...that's what!

Or worse. Like the time Jane Bonda went to work out with a client in his office and wound up having to put a chastity device on his cock and balls to keep him in line. (It seems his boss also suffered a similar restraint from Miss Jane Bonda and is still wearing it!)

Or the time a young coed client couldn't get over her desires for chocolate cake and hot fudge and ice cream and champagne until Jane Bonda dumped her in a wading pool and dumped all that sticky goo on top of her. (As Jane says, "If you're gonna eat the stuff, you might as well wear it!")

Jane Bonda's Bizarre Workout is clever, sexy, relentless and well executed. However, this is a softcore video (nudity but no sex). Still, it's slightly sexy and very funny. A hardcore version would be an absolute delight.

Leather Valentine

by Tom Rogers

How does a leatherman celebrate Valentine's Day? Does he leap with his lover into that annual saccharine flood of hearts and flowers, or does he reinforce his authority by administering discipline more intensely than usual to mark the occasion?

A search for a universally acceptable answer might lead one to ponder the moral of a famous romance of the Charlemagne cycle, entitled Valentine and Orson. Twin brothers, they are carried off—Orson by a bear, to be reared amid savage surroundings; Valentine by his uncle, King Pepin, who brings him up as a courtier. Many years after their separation, Orson, the epitome of uncouthness, and Valentine, with his courtly good manners and noblesse oblige, meet in a forest and recognize each other despite their apparent differences—whose superficiality is thus demonstrated by the story. Ignoring the temptation to generate an erotic fantasy about the specifics of their meeting in that forest, the reference to the story here serves to illustrate that, while we are all remarkably the same in that we are bound together, we are also remarkably different from one another in our style of presentation.

Investigation into the origins of this annual celebration offers little to a leatherman except, perhaps, cause to wonder how Saint Valentine became the patron saint of lovers. He was a Roman priest (and possibly identical with Valentine, bishop of Spoleto, who was martyred February 14, A.D. 271). One might imagine situations where this priest (or bishop) cast aside his vows of celibacy to experience the romantic love that we celebrate in his memory. An adult nudge may also remind us that, as with the story of Valentine and Orson, not every love is sexually communicated. Yet another adult nudge may further remind us that we are seeking a satisfactory manner in which leathermen can celebrate St. Valentine's Day, and it's unlikely that platonic platitudes, whether descriptive of brotherly love or not, enjoy much priority among regular Drummer readers.

Our withdrawal from the above ancient history and progression to the other end of the spectrum requires acknowledging a man whom history generally labels as a sexual rogue. Although he didn't invent it, the Marquis de Sade exemplified and recorded the dynamics of his favorite sexual delivery with such success that said delivery and all its accumulated embellishments are named in his honor. His contribution of sadism as one of the main wings of the libertine philosophy was given a flip side by Austrian novelist von Sascher-Masoch, whose view from the bottom is now known as masochism. The two concepts are generally joined as sadomasochism, or more briefly, SM.

Leathermen among us whose relationships with their lovers follow an SM structure may be inclined to exchange verbal messages or greeting cards, following accepted Valentine's Day practice to communicate their mutual devotion. Since these amatory missives will have their content as minutely tested for commitment as everything else is tested in an SM relationship, it seems appropriate to point out that they should be very carefully worded. Commitment in an SM relationship is so strong an expectation that it justifies repeating one leatherman's recent flip remark identifying SM as an abbreviation of Say it and Mean it.

For that reason, this is not an appropriate occasion, for example, for a fist-fucking bottom to use a tongue-in-cheek message like the t-shirt proclamation which reads, "If you can reach my heart, you can have it." While it may communicate a completely submissive attitude, the realities are that the consequences of success make the challenge unattractive—and its flippancy also throws into question the bottom's willingness to extend the duration of his commitment to be his lover's lover.

Another Valentine's Day custom is gift-giving. There are a number of gifts which may be considered appropriate for the occasion. A bottom may find a whip he feels is just enough more wicked than any in his lover's collection, and make a gift of it to him. A top may symbolically play cupid by arranging a tit piercing for his lover. These particular gifts communicate such satisfaction with what has transpired that even more is being taken/given. They may even be used to communicate the removal of a previously imposed limit—a tangible expansion of the level of trust from bottom to top, and a demonstrated hunger to push beyond prior limits from top to bottom.

So while some lovers may sit across a candlelit table from one another making promises of undying love, leathermen into SM, as their celebration of Valentine's Day, will more likely be keeping the promises that make for an ever-expanding physical, mental and emotional relationship. Say it—and Mean it.

FORESKIN UPDATE

Dear Mr. Berkeley,

Hey man, you can call me Sweet Meat. That's what the gents down at the swimming hole call me. They hoot, "Here comes Sweet Meat" when they see me sauntering their way. They have all tasted my meat in the bushes and agree that my meat is as sweet as ripe corn still standing on the stalk. We are farmers around here and the gents tell me the reason my meat is so sweet-tasting is because it's still wrapped in its husk. Guess most farmboys around here got de-husked at birth. I've tasted their meats and they aren't so sweet-tasting at that! Don't get me wrong, I have nothing against peeled farmboy cobs, but I have often wondered why the gents prefer the taste I've got. Hey, Mr. Berkeley, what do you big city dudes think about sweet meat?

Dear Sweet Meat,

Hey man, you can call me Drooling. However, some big city dudes prefer raunchy meat to sweet meat...and the sourer the better! In any case, your country gents are right. An uncircumcised penis (still in its husk) has all the natural tastes and aromas Nature meant for the male organ. Freshly produced smegma (the result of secretions from the glans-corona) trapped inside the foreskin lubricates and sweetens all the delicate, sensitive tissue in there. Yes, it is a sweet, lusty taste and aroma (Nature's male aphrodisiac) and it smells fresh when it is fresh. Sweet Meat, I'll bet you swab out your husk regularly because if you didn't those country gentlemen would have a different name for you... "Here comes Liederkranz!"

Dear Bud,

I am a slender, circumcised blond in my early twenties. The two features I like most in Drummer are "Drummer Daddies" and "Foreskin Update." I am hooked on gusto older men with hairy chests and strong legs between which swings a long, thick, heavily veined foreskin completely covering a real man's cock.

I met such a man. His was the first foreskin I've had the privilege of inspecting. He noticed me staring at his loosely draped skin after we stripped. "Ever handled unclipped dick?" he asked. Mesmerized, I slowly shook my head. He instructed me with a deep, firm but gentle voice to pick up his magnificent piece of manhood in one hand and with the other hand to "finger" his folded foreskin tip.

My cock was bouncing against my stomach but his just relaxed in my hand. "Start retracting that skin, kid, real slow," he commanded. I could feel the first quiver in his cock as I began to push. He kept instructing: "Push it back a little more now"—"More, real slow"—"Keep pushing, kid." You can't believe how excited I was when his hidden cockhead began to peek through. Slowly I unveiled the most perfectly shaped glans I had ever seen; it pulsed reddish colors at me. "Keep pushing it," he panted, and I continued to shove that skin down a wide, hard rod until it seemed to disappear or blend into the cock. I just sat there staring, not knowing what to do next.

He knew. He took me into his massive arms, held me tight against his hairy chest and whispered, "Keep in mind what you just witnessed." He turned me around and laid me on the bed. Boy, I felt every inch of that foreskin as it slid over his cock inside me and in my mind I could see that the cockhead going in and out of the skin. What a beautiful sight! Well, to be honest, I've never made it with an uncut guy my own age, so I have no way to compare performances...but I'll take it from an older uncut man any day. Just thought you'd like to know.

Dear Mesmerized,

Thanks for the hot testimonial. Here's another one...

Dear Bud,

I had the wildest foreskin sex recently. Afterwards, the guy slumped into a naturally comfortable soft cock of still ponderable length. Lying on my back, I began to experience something I had never known before; he was stretching his toreskin over my nose. There I lay, no doubt cross-eyed, not wanting to miss a move of what was again arousing me in a very deep, inner-self feeling of sexuality. His cock was right at my nostrils, my nose completely covered with the foreskin. I was breathing through my opened mouth when all of a sudden coming down my throat was a warm gush of recycled beer, of piss entering my nostrils. I could only talk to him with my eyes, which I did as he asked me whether or not I liked it. I didn't want it to end. Not a drop, not one was spilled or splattered! What an expert!

Dear Nose,

What a way to go! Amazing. Every day I receive new testimonials in the mail illustrating the versatility of foreskins. Keep 'em coming.

Dear Mr. Berkeley,

My new lover wants me to get circumcised. He doesn't like the looks of uncut cocks. I have a sentimental/ideological attachment to my foreskin and don't want to lose it forever. However, I am so much in love that I am going to have it cut off my cock. What I need to know from you is whether it is possible to preserve my foreskin in the freezer and have it re-attached at a later date...just in case this love affair peters out?

Dear Freezer,

FORGET IT! It's either your new lover or your foreskin! I don't mean to take your question lightly, because I know what you are facing. So many of our fellow gay uncuts have been in your situation. Thank God we are beginning to fight back! I realize you didn't ask my advice about getting circumcised, but what you did ask is impossible. Sure, you can preserve your foreskin in the freezer, but after they cut it off it will no longer be a whole organ usable for reattachment. Most methods of adult circumcision start with a dorsal slit which cuts the foreskin into two pieces. They will cut off mostly the outer skin of your prepuce, leaving some of the inner lining on your cock where it will be sewn back onto your denuded shaft. Sorry! Of course, since you have a sentimental attachment to your foreskin, you might keep it as a family keepsake or a conversation piece. There are several ways of preserving it, if your circumciser will give it back to you (see next letter).

Again, Freeze, FORGET IT! Don't get circumcised. As you might have read in my previous articles, I am not totally against adult circumcision (nix on neonatal, though). If a fellow has raging circumcision fantasies which have become a part of his sexuality, and the very word "circumcision" gives him an erection, I'd say go for it. I receive many letters from such men, and if they convince me, I'll put them in touch with a group of like-minded pre- and post-circumcisees.

However, please believe me—I have received many letters from men who got circumcised only to please a lover and the results are almost always DISASTROUS...both on the penis and the relationship. Hell, you are in love with this fellow despite his circumcised cock, why can't he love you despite your foreskin?

Dear Bud,

My lover got circumcised just before I met him. He asked his doctor to give him his foreskin in a bottle of formaldehyde. The doctor refused. Can you imagine refusing to give a person a part of his body? I'll bet the doctor sold the skin for profit. Is that a feasible assumption?

Dear Lover,

Yes, it could be feasible. What happens to carved-off foreskins? THAT is a taboo subject if ever there was one...so let's discuss it. Actually, foreskins are currently being used in the manufacture of the drug Interferon. They were used in the development of the Salk vaccine. Freshly severed prepuces give medical researchers the opportunity of using healthy human cells. What other part of the body gets chopped off while it is still healthy? Don't panic, uncut readers, I have been assured by reliable medical sources that one little foreskin goes a long way...I doubt whether we will ever have "foreskin banks" to fill urgent needs, etc., especially since American hospitals continue providing such a bountiful supply. Did your lover's doctor sell his foreskin? I doubt it (I believe some states have laws against possession of body parts...this conversation is getting macabre!); as for hospitals, have you ever known one to give anything away for free?

Delving into this awful subject a little further, we must realize that ancient circumcision rites usually included elaborate, ritualistic disposal of foreskins. Foreskins have been tanned into leather, worn as amulets, sucked on, given special burials, burned at the altar, etc. Sometimes they have been dumped. In more recent times, we have read about cases of circumcision fetish among medics, etc. Well, grapevine rumor has it that a huge cache of bottled foreskins exists, with collections labeled "WWII," "Korea," "Vietnam," and so on. Another historical collection is said to be hidden in Egypt, dating back to the Sahara theatre of WWII...supposedly supplied by both Axis and Allied POWs. Personally, the only tangible evidence I have ever seen of any such collection was that ad that appeared in New York's Village Other claiming that a retired Navy doctor had bottles of foreskins for sale.

Closer to home, I recently received a letter from a reader saying that his friend got circumcised, tanned his foreskin into an amazingly large sheet of leather and inscribed it with Egyptian cartouches. He called it his "Sacred Carving." As I was saying, foreskins are so versatile!

Dear Bud,

Before I read your articles on foreskin stretching, I had a one inch overhang. Now I've got two inches. I really enjoy experimenting with my longer foreskin and so do my friends. It doesn't seem to get any longer than two inches though, and I stretch it every day. How long do foreskins get?

Dear Longer Skin,

I've seen some three to four inchers, but they are rare. Two inches seems to be the limit for most foreskin overhangs. Consider yourself lucky with your two inches; many uncut men have short foreskins which don't normally overhang, and for them stretching to a half-inch overhang is an accomplishment. Any overhang at all (during erection) will nicely accommodate probing tongues, teeth, fingers, etc. Keep stretching though, my friend, or else your overhang will shrink back to its nice little inch.

Come to think of it, I do recall a photo of an Indian Yogi who had a good six inch overhang. The Hindus of India have the longest foreskins on the planet, according to anthropologists. Higher caste Hindus believe that a diminutive penis with a long, tapered prepuce is the mark of a prince (as did the ancient Greeks). Lower caste Hindus favor cattle cocks with foreskin overhangs that drag on the ground. I once observed a photo of an Indian fakir dragging a boulder through the streets of Calcutta by a rope tied to his foreskin. Any uncut yoga enthusiasts out there?

Sir!

I am usually an M until I get a foreskin in my grip, and then I turn S. I have been fortunate enough to use surgical sutures on a half-dozen foreskins. My best job was the third time. This guy was not gay, but I had surgically infibulated one of his friends and he wanted to have the same experience. I ushered him into the bedroom and ordered him to strip. I told him I had some Lidocaine which would deaden the area I was about to sew shut, but he said he would rather do without it. He lay down on the bed and I prepped him...shaving off his pubic hair. Being a nut on sterile procedures, I carefully cleansed out his foreskin with Betadine and used fenestrated sterile drape. I chose a 4-0 nylon suture with an FS-2 cutting needle and had only two instruments laid out; a toothed addson (like tweezers with teeth to grasp onto tissue) and a compo. As I grasped the tip of his foreskin with the toothed addson he let out a yell, and I quickly informed him that this would indeed not do and again offered to use some local anesthetic. He refused it once again. As I went back to business he shifted when I approached with the suture.

At this point I told him he had a choice—either go now and forget the whole thing or be restrained and gagged. He chose the latter. I used nylon ropes and tied him face-up on the bed. Again I offered Lidocaine, but he refused it. I put in six sutures and left them fairly loose so he could urinate around them and left a corner open enough to get in a Q-Tip for cleaning—and then gave him a 5cc syringe and told him to insert clean soapy water and rinse out his locked-in glans at least twice a day. I have no idea how long he remained infibulated as I never saw him again.

Several men have returned to request that I perform circumcisions on them, but so far I have refused. If you have any readers who want my services, please send them my way.

Dear Toothed Addson,

Well, you have certainly convinced me that you know what you are doing. And being a nut for sterile procedures is a plus too! One of the biggest complaints I hear from uncut SM enthusiasts is that most American top men have no idea how to treat (or mistreat) foreskins; and having one's foreskin sewn shut is a favorite uncut fantasy. Infibulation was common practice in ancient Rome, where elaborate infibulation gadgets were developed. Your sutures sound adequate to me and I'll probably have a line-up of readers wanting your services. And, while they are in an M situation, some of them will probably request the ultimate...a far-out clip job. So, you cool-headed nut for sterile procedures, be prepared! By the way, any more qualified top men out there?

Dear Mr. Berkeley Sir,

I appreciate your Drummer writings very much. They sure took me through a rough period with my foreskin. When I joined the Navy I couldn't keep my dick from getting hard. I thought it was because the tight uniform caused my skin to slid back and the rubbing irritated my exposed cockhead. I was ready to request a circumcision. It was only your Drummer article that made me think twice about it. Then I realized my stiff dick was caused by all the Navy cocks I was seeing in the showers and the barracks. I finally got used to them and now have better control of my hard-ons. Now I am glad I saved my foreskin, because circumcised sailors can't beat off in their bunks without messing things up. I beat off in my bunk, and when I'm ready to go over the top I pinch my foreskin closed and keep all the juice locked up inside, and my bunk stays clean for inspection.

Dear Pinch,

Thanks for the good news! I am always happy to save a Navy skin. And readers, as I was saying, foreskins are so versatile.

NOTE TO BLIND MEAT: Thanks for the photo, pal. It's a classic! No wonder they're hungry for it! We would like to share it with our readers, but we can't reprint polaroids. Know anyone with a good camera?
